Japan Drops a Few Bombs

What About Silver

How Many Enterprises

Will the Universe Die

By Arthur Brisbane

Astronomers look into distant nebulae a few million "light years" away and tell you how great suns are built up to run their journeys, through millions of years.

A shorter look into distant Manchuria tells you how wars are built up to run their courses of destruction.

Japan is using air bombs on the Chinese effectively, showing us a miniature of the next war. Finding 6000 armed Chinese in one convenient spot, Japan dropped bombs and killed about 200 as a reminder that the next war will not be amusing.

China calls the dead Chinese soldiers. Japan says they were bandits. That bombing annoys the Chinese, who say the League of Nations, that like Brer Rabbit, does and says nothing is useless. Russia is accumulating soldiers on the border, perhaps planning to take part in the Manchurian proceedings. That worries Japan. Russia, also, has devoted attention to the gentle art of dropping bombs. And Japan is a collection of houses that could be burned by tens of thousands with fire bombs.

Before we know it, we may be out of a depression and into a war.

Senator Borah says "there is not enough gold in the world, not enough gold standard money to carry on the world's business, so we must have silver at 14 to 1." And immediately a big gold strike is announced in Nevada.

E. E. Vassar and Leroy Mason found the gold ledge, 37 feet wide, and when the gold assayed $5000 to the ton, they were too excited to keep their secret. A gold rush is on.

The wise man in the rush is an experienced gold camp restaurant keeper. On his way with the others, but only to cook. "I'll get $3 for ham and eggs," says he. Something will be done about silver for the world is willing to try anything once. Fourteen to one cropping up in the Republican party, where Bryan's 16 to 1 was called heresy is significant.

Fortunately this country has the silver, more of it than any other nation. If the world wants to call silver money, and put a silver calf beside the calf of gold, that will not hurt us. We have, or can produce, almost any amount of silver, and we have the gold.

That last is the important fact, and we should keep that gold, for it will be always fashionable. Five billions of it behind our gigantic dollar operation seem little, but five billion is enough to give supremacy to our dollar.

The Pope's warning encyclical says impendet, "new things are upon us," urging cessation of war preparations and help for the poor be issued, appropriately on the "Feast of the Guardian Angels."

Reminding the world that "the Redeemer will count as done unto Himself whatever we do for His poor," the Pope urges the bishops "by preaching and by the press" to combat extravagant armaments to which he attributes the world's present troubles.

Choosing a mild word, the Pontiff warns the world that want may drive the poor to exasperation.

Experienced men in the United States predict that fear will drive the poor beyond the point of mere exasperation.

How many and how different are the enterprises that interest men. As you read this, Herndon and Pangborn, who flew from here to Japan, are again in the United States. They landed at Wenatchee, in an attempt to reach Salt Lake City. They have not broken the world's non-stop record, but they went 4525 miles and landed at the home town of Pangborn. That's something. They tried and for much men trying is the next thing to succeeding.

While the Japanese drop bombs, the Russians mass troops, the Pope calls for charity, the fliers skim over the Pacific and the labor unions announce that some one must find jobs and prosperity for them, the railroads put forth a plan

GILLETTE COMPANY SUED FOR TWO MILLION

Wilmington, Del., Oct. 5 (AP)—A $2,000,000 damage suit was filed in U. S. district court today by the Segal Lock and Hardware Co. of New York against the Gillette Safety Razor Co., alleging violation of the Clayton anti-monopoly act.

HEMORRHAGE FATAL TO SENATOR

End Comes Peacefully in Jersey Home of Former Diplomat, Brief Statement Says

New York, Oct. 5 (AP)—Senator Dwight W. Morrow died at 1:52 o'clock this afternoon of a cerebral hemorrhage in his home at Englewood, N. J.

A brief announcement of Senator Morrow's death was issued from his office here, merely giving the fact and place of his death and saying his passing was peaceful.

Miss Alice Morrow and Mrs. Anne Morrow Scandrett, sisters of the late Senator, were to have sailed at 4 o'clock this afternoon for Istanbul, Turkey, aboard the American export liner Exilona. They cancelled their passage.

BIG SCITUATE RUM SEIZURE

Scituate police and coast guards today seized $50,000 worth of liquor and arrested three men in a raid on the exclusive summer estate of Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams.

The men gave their names as Harry Stone, 33, of Miller st., Louis Gorden, 28, of Calway st., both Dorchester, and the prisoner admitted that the name given was false.

The names and addresses of Stone and Gorden were also believed fictitious. There is no Calway st., in Dorchester.

A new sedan, found on the grounds, was also seized. It is registered to Harris Cheney of Lucerne st., Dorchester.

Police credited the underworld "double-cross" for the tip that led them to the barn.

It came in a telephone call to the Scituate police and gave all the details.

Chief Stewart and nine men, augmented by Cap. Sumner Corbett and five men from the Scituate coast guard station, staged the capture, just as dawn was breaking.

Paving Contract Let

A contract for bituthic paving on West Dedham st., South End was awarded Martino De Matteo at a cost of $12,435 by Mayor Curley today.

HERNDON AND MATE WIN $25,000

Defy Death, Alighting Without Wheels at the Home of Pangborn's Mother

Wenatchee, Wash., Oct. 5—Hugh Herndon, Jr., and Clyde Pangborn, successfully completed the first non-stop transPacific flight when they landed here at 7:10 a. m. (Pacific standard time), or 10:10 a. m. Boston time.

This is the home of Pangborn's mother who was on hand to welcome him home.

Success of the fliers in the first non-stop flight over the Pacific was promptly rewarded by a $25,000 prize offer by a Japanese paper for the first such flight.

Pangborn and Herndon considered repairing their plane and flying on to Texas to claim a $25,000 prize offered by Col. William E. Easterwood, Jr., for a Japan to Dallas flight, but learned Easterwood declared them ineligible.

They are the only men ever to cross the Pacific in an airplane without an intermediate stop. The dirigible Graf Zeppelin crossed from Tokio to Los Angeles in 1929 without a stop and several planes have crossed it in two or more hops.

DANGEROUS LANDING

Before coming down the fliers circled a few minutes and dumped

ELY AND CURLEY READY TO AID

Gov. Ely and Mayor Curley stood ready to act as emergency arbiters if necessary, today in the waterfront labor war, as union leaders and steamship company agents met in a peace parley in the Boston Grain and Flour Exchange.

In spite of the ultimatum that they would not attend any conference at which representatives of the International Mercantile Marine, the Luckenbach line and the Cunard Co. were present, union chiefs remained at the meeting when these representatives appeared.

These three companies have refused to abide by the four days' strike truce and are getting along without union longshoremen.

Joseph J. Conley, secretary of the Boston district council of the longshoremen's organization, said he had been misunderstood in the ultimatum which he made public last night.

"Some progress has been made," said Elliot Ware of the Boston Board of Port Authority, when the conference adjourned for lunch after two and a half

MARTIN IS STAR AS GRIMES FANS 'EM

His Bat Starts Cards Off In Second and Fourth Innings

Shibe Park, Philadelphia, Oct. 5—The St. Louis Cardinals defeated the Philadelphia Athletics here today before a capacity crowd of nearly 33,000 fans in the third game of the World Series and are now leading the Mackmen, two games to one, in the race for the title.

Robert Moses Grove, southpaw ace of the Athletics, who defeated the Cardinals in the series opener at St. Louis, was Mack's choice. He was opposed by Burleigh Grimes, veteran spitballer.

The Cardinals got an early jump on the A's, scoring twice in the second inning. As usual, "Pepper" Martin was prominent in putting across the scores. The Cardinals added two more runs in the fourth while Grimes kept the Mackies sluggers well in hand, only two of the enemy reaching first base in six innings, and each got there on a pass.

Grove looked far below form, and the Cards had little respect for his ability or reputation. After Bottomley walked in the second and Hafey flied out, Martin sent a single over second base that brought Bottomley around to third. Wilson singled to score Bottomley, and Martin, who is as fast as a deer, put over the second run when Gelbert flied to Miller.

CARDS ADD TWO MORE

Again in the fourth, aided and abetted by the same "Pepper" Martin, the Cards added two more runs. After Hafey singled, Martin slammed out his seventh hit of the series, a double, that sent Hafey to third. With two men down, Grimes singled to right field to score Hafey and Martin.

Miller was the first Mackman to get a hit, driving out a single in the eighth when it appeared that Grimes was on the road to a no-hit game.

Grove passed out of the game when Mack sent in Cramer to bat for him in the eighth with two on and two out.

Lefty Grove, Mack's ace, with one series victory behind him, was in the box for the A's. He was

LABOR CHIEF WARNS INDUSTRY TO AID JOBLESS

'MUST PROVIDE WORK OR PAY HIGHER TAX'

Green Raps Henry Ford's Policy as A. F. of L. Convention Opens

Vancouver, B. C., Oct. 5 (AP)—America's representatives of organized labor convened here today demanding that private industry furnish more jobs or pay the penalty of higher taxes.

The 51st annual gathering of the American Federation of Labor was summoned. President William Green said to present the nation practical methods, both temporary and permanent of relieving unemployment and depression.

Its first official duty, after being called to order, was acceptance of welcomes to be tendered by W. A. MacKenzie, minister of labor and mines. Nels Lougheed, minister of mines, and other officials of British Columbia, which custom decreed that President Green must answer.

"ALL ONE FAMILY"

Outlining his views on labor's attitude toward the unemployment situation, Green said:

"Americans are all one family, and we must approach the problem in that light. A family without enough jobs to support all its members, would not push several of them out in the cold to starve because they had no jobs. Instead, the family would divide the work between all its members, and let each do something. All would sacrifice, but all would live."

So capital must share the burden of labor, he said, and help apportion the jobs available. Industry, chief beneficiary of the machine age, he added, must aid by maintaining the American wage standard by allowing shorter working hours and through work insurance.

"It must help through keeping up wages and providing jobs, or it must help by paying taxes," he said.

First actual work before the delegates was presentation of the executive council's report recommending a national conference on work apportionment, shorter hours, wage standard maintenance, work assurance, prohibition of child labor, industrial stabilization, especially in seasonal industries, and balance of production to equalize supply and demand.

It suggested higher taxes on great wealth, modification of the Volstead act to permit 2.75 per cent beer, private and community unemployment relief work and comprehensive planning to prevent future depressions, with "national economic conferences" to show the way.

RAPS FORD'S METHOD

President Green, adverting to his illustration of "the American family" said of job allocation:

"For example, Mr. Henry Ford discharged 20,000 men because of the depression and kept 50,000 on the job. The 20,000 went on the charity of Detroit, and it was soon exhausted. If he had divided the work so that the 70,000 could all go something, even if less than before, all of the 70,000 would have had work and would have cost him no more."

Green said 500 delegates were counted on, with an unusually large number of visitors, despite the depression, bringing the total attending the convention to around 1600. Secretary of Labor Doak and Senator James J. Davis, former secretary, were among the guests.

hours of discussion. They were to reconvene late this afternoon.

TRUCE STILL IN EFFECT

The truce, agreed to by all other steamship owners and the chiefs of the International Longshoremen's Association, is in effect until 5 p. m. tomorrow.

Police Commissioner Hultman went this morning to Commonwealth pier, scene of a serious race riot between union workmen and strike-breakers, and after a survey left Deputy Supt. McDevitt in charge there with a strong force of officers.

Later at headquarters the commissioner announced a discontinuance of a policy of many years of permitting corporations to hire police in connection with labor troubles. He said he learned of this custom for the first time today.

"I have ordered this practice stopped," he said. "It is our duty to protect the public and there will be no more 'paid details' during labor troubles."

250 UNION MEN AT WORK.

More than 250 union men were at work handling freight on the American-Hawaiian liner Iowan, which is loading for Pacific ports, and the Nebraskan of the same line, which arrived this morning from the West coast.

All the strikebreakers had left the pier during the night, with completion of their work on the Luckenbach steamers. The Susan Luckenbach went into drydock at East Boston and tomorrow the J. L. Luckenbach will replace her there. The Susan Luckenbach will then return to the state pier to load, and more trouble may develop at that time, if the strikebreakers are recalled.

Mayor Curley and Governor Ely both intimated last night that they would make every effort in their power to end the present crisis and prevent a general walkout of dock workers, a procedure that would cripple shipping here.

Little action was produced at the various piers yesterday. Office workers, including Francis P. Hamlin, scion of a wealthy Dedham family, took up the burden at the Cunard docks and unloaded one cargo and stowed another aboard vessels of that line. The White Star liner Baltic carried its cargo to New York, from where it will be shipped here by rail.

Union workers did not interfere with the white-collar longshoremen, and at other piers union men worked on vessels under the terms of the truce, which expired tomorrow. Non-union workers also continued unloading and loading Luckenbach line vessels at Commonwealth Pier, but were unmolested.

Labor and Business Announce Programs To Stabilize Industry

LABOR and business made public their programs for stabilization of the country's economic and industrial systems. Labor's plan is contained in the report of the executive council of the American Federation of Labor, which will be made today to the general convention in Vancouver, B. C. The program advocated by business was submitted yesterday by the United States Chamber of Commerce to its membership for a vote. The two plans follow:

LABOR	BUSINESS
1—National conference of employers and laborers to be called by President Hoover to devise means of dividing all available work among all workers.	1—Creation of a national economic council to equalize production and foster continuity of jobs.
2—Immediate inauguration of the five-day week and shorter work day in all public and private industry.	2—Limited amendment of the anti-trust laws.
3—Maintenance of the wage structure and wage standard.	3—Establishment of privately sustained systems of unemployment benefits.
4—Work assurance, a guarantee to the employed that they are secure in their positions.	4—Prevention of manipulative control of the commodity and securities exchanges.
5—Prohibition of Child labor.	5—Stringent regulations against the use of temporary prices as the basis of bank loans.
6—Stabilization of industry with particular reference to industries classified as seasonal.	6—A determined stand by this country for international disarmament.
7—Scientific stabilization of production to balance supply and demand.	7—Employment rotation to relieve immediate distress.

LOOMFIXERS IN LAWRENCE VOTE STRIKE

Two Mills, Employing 5000 Workers, Are Forced to Shut Down Because of Agitators

Lawrence, Oct. 5—A vote to strike next Saturday by 275 loom fixers and the forced closing of the Ayer and Wood mills of the American Woolen Co. disturbed peacemakers in the textile disturbance here today.

The Ayer and Wood mills, employing an aggregate of 5000 workers, were forced to close when between 200 and 250 agitators entered each mill, intimidating workers and causing such confusion that the mill heads ordered them shut down for today at least.

The disturbance came as the Citizens' Committee and mill heads were meeting in city hall in the hope that a satisfactory agreement could be reached to avert a threatened strike as the result of a 10 per cent wage cut, effective Oct. 13.

The two bands of disturbers entered the Ayer and Wood mills simultaneously during the noon hour under the guise of operatives looking for work.

SHUTDOWN IS ORDERED

They spread rapidly through the departments, threatening workers if they did not walk out and disrupting the mill schedule so completely that the shut-down order was given.

The strike vote of the 275 loom fixers was announced today by Oliver Christian, president of the Lawrence and National Loom Fixers' Union and executive councillor of the American Federation of Textile Operatives.

His union is not affiliated with the American Federation of Labor as are the other units which are striving through the citizens' committee, for a settlement before a strike vote is taken.

SECRET BALLOT.

The action will affect the Pacific Mills most seriously, because its 200 loom fixers are all affiliated with the union that voted to strike.

Christian said the strike vote was taken Saturday night at a meeting in Loom Fixers' hall. On a secret ballot, the members voted strike, 8 to 1, he said.

The other unions, leaders of which met last night with the citizens' committee at City Hall today, saw brighter prospects for averting a strike.

The citizens committee, armed with the willingness of the workers to discuss the problem with the manufacturers, today was awaiting word that the manufacturers would meet with them.

The latter refused a similar move a week ago, announcing that they would discuss the situation only with shop committees of the mills.

OFFER COMPROMISE

Union workers declared such a system unsatisfactory on the grounds that members of shop committees were not necessarily union men, and therefore could make no agreement for those soliciting membership in unions.

After last night's meeting, it was reported that the workers stood unwilling to accept the proposed wage cut of 10 per cent but were ready to accept a compromise.

Glass Hits 84, Hot Again Tomorrow

Bostonians enjoyed another midsummer day today with cloudless skies and high temperature. At 2 p. m. the mercury touched 84 official, having climbed 31 degrees since 7 a. m. Fair, warm weather will continue tomorrow with plenty of sunshine, according to the official forecaster. Yesterday's top temperature was 80. A year ago today the highest temperature was 62.

NON-UNION MEN ON TEXAS DOCKS

Galveston, Tex., Oct. 5 (AP)—Non-union laborers were called to load deep sea vessels in Texas Gulf ports today as a result of the failure of representatives of maritime interests and 4000 striking longshoremen to reach a wage agreement.

Wharf police forces were augmented here and in Houston. Quarters were erected for the workmen on the wharfs.

Representatives of both factions failed to comment following a conference here last night, but immediately afterward shipping agents announced loading with non-union labor would begin today.

Not a vessel had taken on a cargo here since the longshoremen called their strike last Thursday.

The strike, affecting longshoremen in Galveston, Corpus Christi, Texas City and Houston, was called in protest of a proposed wage reduction from 80 to 65 cents an hour.

Bystanders' Shouts Saves Foe of Gang

Philadelphia, Oct. 5—An intended gang victim's life was believed to have been saved yesterday by the screams of bystanders, including a dozen children.

John Pellicotti, 34, was sitting in his brother's sedan parked at a curb, when three young men with drawn pistols leaped from another automobile as it drew alongside. Pellicotti threw himself on the floor of the car. The gunmen started to break the windows of the car but became alarmed and fled when bystanders shouted.

COLL, 4 OTHERS, IDENTIFIED AS BABY KILLERS

Police Announce They Were Occupants of the Car That Sprayed Bullets on Children

New York, Oct. 5 (AP)—Vincent Coll and four members of his gang arrested in a roundup in Manhattan, all have been identified as the gunmen who occupied the automobile from which bullets swept a Harlem street July 28, killing one child and wounding four others, Inspector John J. Sullivan announced today.

"These prisoners are the baby killers," Inspector Sullivan said, as the five mounted the brightly lighted platform in the police lineup.

"They are responsible for the shooting in East 107th st. We have information that each and every one of them was in the automobile at the time of the killing."

ACCUSES GIORDANO

Last night police said Coll and one of his gangsters had been identified as occupants of the car. They refused to say where they got their information because of danger to their informant.

Frank Giordano, who is nearly 10 years older than the gangster leader, actually did the shooting, Inspector Sullivan said.

Giordano was arrested in an apartment yesterday, several hours before Coll and Dominick Odierno were captured with two girls in a West Side hotel.

Mike Baisle and Pasquale Del Greco, also arrested in yesterday's roundup, shuffled onto the platform under the glaring lights with Coll, Odierno and Giordano.

Arrested with Coll and Odierno in the hotel were Lottie Kreisberger, who told police she was Coll's wife and said she would rather have a ham sandwich with Coll than a fortune with any other man, and Betty White.

IMPERFECT DISGUISE

Coll's disguise was indirectly revealed as he stood on the brightly lighted platform. His hair had been dyed black—not very skilfully, and on his upper lip was a feeble attempt at a mustache.

to create four economical systems, with 43,000 miles of trackage and a capital investment of ten billions.

The proposed four simplified systems would serve the public better, and save money. There is, probably, no doubt that the Interstate Commerce Commission will consent.

Far away, and different from anything discussed by ordinary mortals was the recent discussion in which five great scientists took part; Jeans, Eddington, Millikan, Milne and Lodge.

In their five heads there is such wisdom as would give you a headache if you only read a catalogue of it, and all their knowledge of physics, astronomy, chemistry, radiation and the conduct of the atom under conditions prevailing on giant suns at temperatures ranging up to fifty million degrees centigrade, was centered on the question, "What is to become of the universe?"

Jeans says the stars are pouring out their substance in radiation. The energy thrown out can never be reassembled, so the universe must die, and that, will be the end of everything. No more gold or silver bars, the electrons that make up the atoms of those metallic elements will be scattered in space. No more short selling, no more "now I lay me down to sleep." The whole universe will sleep forever.

Millikan, the American, says "no, the universe seems to run down, but has the power to wind itself up." He proves it by his cosmic rays.

Eddington says the universe must explode. It should be a terrific explosion, when you consider that a small-sized sun is one million times as big as our earth, and there are millions of millions of such suns.

There is no immediate cause for worry, since the wise men all agree that even our little sun, and this tiny earth, with the human microbes on it, will surely last for hundreds of millions of years longer. And it is a comfort for the mentally small person to see great minds at odds. They are, he it said with deep respect, like the blind men describing the elephant, in the Asiatic tale. One seized a leg saying "It's a tree trunk." Another holding the trunk, was sure it was a snake, and a third, holding the tail, said "it's a rope."

Not one, in his blindness, could imagine a whole elephant.

Not one of the great scientists can imagine a whole universe.

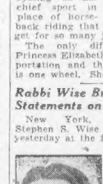
Rabbi Wise Brands Shaw's Statements on Jews False

New York, Oct. 5—Rabbi Stephen S. Wise gave his answer yesterday at the free synagogue in Temple [illegible] to Bernard Shaw about the Jews.



Rabbi Wise

"Shaw knows nothing could be farther from the truth than his statement that the long made peace with the Jews," Wise said. "The charge in the second half of his statement: 'The Jews won't make peace with the world' is cruelly false.' "The Jew was never required to make peace with the world. He is at peace with the world."

These contracts are for the 66-story radio city tower, and for the international music hall and the sound theater. The project is expected to have an appreciable effect on relieving unemployment.

U. S. Reaps Rich Harvest From Rum Traffic in Panama

RAILROAD HAS MONOPOLY ON SHIPPING

Red-Light District and Flop-Houses Pour Cash Into Washington

By CARLISLE BARGERON
(Copyright, 1931)

Colon, Panama, Oct. 5 (US)—Hundreds of congressmen have come down here a-junketing and on investigation bent. The Panamanians look upon the two as synonymous and they carried so many of the dry species back onto the boat that the suggestion of a congressional investigating committee is likely to cause them much mirth.

And a couple of years ago our moral forces in the states were outraged over the fact that the suit cases of some of the dry congressmen had leaked.

CONCERNED ABOUT ARMY

It did not occur to anyone to consider Uncle Sam's part in the liquor traffic here or the manner in which he collects from the red-light district or the 25-cents-a-night hotels.

Even Senator Brookhart of Iowa, as dry as the dryest, did not represent Uncle Sam's railroad hauling liquor, his collection of rentals from the breweries and distilleries, of the high stacks of liquor piled upon United States owned wharves. He studied the free and easy living of Colon, at the Atlantic end of the canal, and came to a decision.

He would, he threatened, move when he returned to the states to make Colon and Panama City out of bounds to the military forces of the United States.

MONOPOLY ON SHIPPING

The Volstead Act, in defiance of every governmental preachment in the states since it went into effect, gives exemption to the Panama railroad, which the United States government owns.

The exemption for the United States government-owned railroad is for the very practical purpose of making money.

It gives Uncle Sam a monopoly on the transportation of liquor between here and Panama City, too, and also in the distribution of liquor to Panama towns and villages on the northern side of the canal.

He is so jealous about his liquor traffic that the Panama brewery and distilling interests of Colon and Panama City cannot in their own vehicles transport their products back and forth or into the north country.

No, indeed, they must ship by Uncle Sam's railroad or trucks.

(Another article on Uncle Sam's liquor traffic will appear tomorrow.)

CHICAGO SET FOR "AL" CAPONE'S INCOME TAX TRIAL

AL'S BROTHER

Reports indicated that Al Capone in his defense will contend that various ventures attributed to him were really conducted by his brother Ralph Capone (above) and one Jack Guzik.

HERE IS "SNORKEY," "SCARFACE AL" TO YOU

Tomorrow morning in Chicago, Alphonse Capone will face a federal court judge and jury on failure to report or pay income tax reputed to amount to $215,000. They tell that Al made over a million in six years in prohibition doings. Capone recently pleaded guilty to the charges he faces tomorrow. But later on he changed his plea to not guilty. LEGAL TUSSLE ON TOMORROW IN CHICAGO

Racket King Expected to Plead That He Is Broke; Jury to Be Guarded

By DAMON RUNYON
(Copyright, 1931)

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 5 (US)—Alphonse Capone, prohibition's gift to Chicago, who is "Snorkey" to his intimates and "Scarface Al" to the magazine writers, "goes to bat," as the boys say, tomorrow morning to face the legal pitching of your Uncle Sam.

He is charged on a whole raft of counts with violation of the income tax law. It was to these charges, along with a job lot of accusations relative to compound fractures of the prohibition act, that Alphonse Capone pleaded guilty last summer.

JUDGE SPOILS PLAN

The plea was under the terms of a deal alleged to have been made with certain of the government authorities that would see Mr. Alphonse Capone down with about two years and a half in a federal hoosegow, which a man can do standing on his head.

It was like the time a bunch of ball players got together and decided to throw a game to the opposing club for a financial consideration. They took in all hands on the deal except a big Swede who played center field. They left him out because they thought he didn't count, anyway, and they would save his "cut."

The Swede innocently hit five home runs, and ruined the plot.

Well, it seems that in making the deal with Alphonse Capone, they left out the judge. James H. Wilkerson, of the Federal court. Furthermore, it seems that the

'TALKIES' KILL TEMPERAMENT

Sound engineers in the movie industry are eliminating the temperament of actors and actresses, Dr. Karl T. Compton, president of M. I. T., told the Society of Motion Picture Engineers today at the New Ocean House Seamposert.

More than 200 engineers gathered for a three-day meeting in celebration of the 15th birthday of the organization.

"To the uninitiated visitor in a Hollywood studio, the operation of the great moving picture industry appears to be carried on with a maximum of confusion and disorganization," Dr. Compton said.

"But the artistic temperament of favored actors and actresses, which has caused all the confusion, is now succumbing to the discipline of the sound engineers."

Ben Schlager of New York, advocate of the "up hill" seating arrangement in theaters, reversed from the present order, was another speaker at the opening. A proposal to have him illustrate his ideas before the convention was declined by the delegates.

Technical talks were the order today and will be tomorrow and Wednesday.

At a closing banquet Wednesday night honorary memberships will be awarded to distinguished scientists, including Thomas A. Edison.

12 FAMILIES ARE ROUTED BY FIRE

Brockton, Oct. 5—Twelve families, including several children were driven to the street and an 81-year-old woman invalid was rescued early today when fire broke out in the four-story apartment block at 21 Highland st.

The fire, which started in the basement and which was caused by an overheated furnace, according to police, raced rapidly through the building.

When Patrolman Thomas Delaney arrived occupants of the apartments were racing out of the building. He was informed that Mrs. Josephine Durkin, 81, an invalid who had been confined to her bed for three years, was unable to get out.

The officer and Deputy Fire Chief John Murphy rushed up the smoke filled stairways to Mrs. Durkin's room and carried her down three floors to the street.

She was taken to the home of neighbors, suffering from shock.

Although only one alarm was sounded, the fire brought nearly every piece of apparatus in the city, as the box is known as the "danger box."

The first and second floors were heavily damaged by smoke and water. Most all the occupants went to the homes of neighbors for the remainder of the night.

ANN BURLAK IS PUT ON TRIAL

Providence, Oct. 5—As nearly 300 sympathizers milled about the corridors of the superior courthouse today, a jury was empanelled in 25 minutes to hear the charges against Miss Anna Burlak of Bethlehem, Pa., so-called "red flame" of the recent Rhode Island textile strikes.

Miss Burlak was charged with assault against Miss Louise King, the charge specifically alleging she threw red pepper into the eyes of the mill forelady last June.

The sympathizers were quiet and were not allowed into the courtroom. An extra detail of police was stationed in the corridors to preclude any possibility of a disturbance.

After the jury was empanelled, Isadore Horenstein, counsel for Miss Burlak, moved that the jury be taken to view the scene of the alleged assault, and it was granted by Judge Jeremiah O'Connell, without objections from Prosecutor William A. O'Toole, assistant district attorney.

HUSBAND BEATS BURGLAR

Because Mrs. Mary A. Forsyth of Hancock st., West Somerville, is a light sleeper, and her husband a good scrapper, a bungling and inept burglar, the boldest exposition of John Murray, 21 of Cambridge came to an abrupt halt this morning.

Mrs. Forsyth was awakened by a noise in the kitchen and aroused her husband. William Forsyth, Jr. grappled with Murray, while she telephoned the police. Forsyth and the burglar were still wrestling when Sergt. Kilbourly arrived.

Murray told police he had been a guest at a wedding and went out to get some cigarettes. Returning, he got into the wrong house. Police found it was true that he had been a wedding guest, but he was held in $1000 for the grand jury when arraigned in Somerville court.

Among other things, police said he gave addresses in three different cities, although he is believed to live in Cambridge.

THIRD ARREST IN CHECK CASE

The third arrest in connection with an alleged gang of bad-check passers occurred today when George "Chick" Wermer, alias King, was taken into custody in an apartment at 393 Massachusetts ave.

With him, Sergt. Maurice Sullivan and Special Officer Joseph Condon arrested Margaret Jenkins and Anna Fitzpatrick, both 24, giving the apartment as their home. They were charged with a statutory offence, and Wermer with larceny by means of worthless checks.

Two other alleged members of the gang, Richard Tague, alias Gibson, and John Pardy, have been taken into custody. Tague was arrested in Orange, N. J., for Boston police and Pardy, who lives in Dedham, at the Hotel Statler. A fourth man is being sought.

According to the police, the band has passed small worthless checks in Newton, Wellesley, Natick, Brookline and Boston.

Police said the two girls arrested with Wermer claimed to have no knowledge of any check passing, but admitted having lived with Wermer and Tague.

SUPREME BENCH OPENS SESSION

Washington, Oct. 5 (US)—Ready to consider many questions of constitutional rights, the United States Supreme Court today reconvened for its fall term.

Associate Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes, 90, of Boston, mounted the bench with his associates, hale and hearty. On December 8 he will have been on the supreme bench 29 years.

Petitions for hearings of the cases of Prof. Douglas Clyde Macintosh and Marie Averill Bland, a nurse, denied citizenship because they refused to take an oath to bear arms if called upon, will be settled probably within two weeks.

Two Chicago cases are being watched by organized labor. In one, a painters union was held by lower courts to have violated the anti-trust law by refusing to work on buildings in which kitchen cabinets, already painted, were installed.

In the other case, unions were held anti-trust law violators for refusal to permit non-union Western Union workers to install equipments.

FOG TIES UP N. Y. TRAFFIC

New York, Oct. 5 (AP)—A dense blanket of fog rolled in from the ocean today, seriously hampering traffic and air transport service.

Of ten ships due to dock this morning, seven reached Quarantine early and halted for the fog to lift before proceeding to their piers. The other three were unreported at 8 o'clock, but were believed to be proceeding cautiously through the dense mist covering the ocean waters adjoining the harbor.

Air lines from the metropolitan area also were fog-bound and transcontinental planes were delaying departure in the hope the sky would clear later in the day. Service on the West Shore ferry from Weehawken, N. J., to Cortlandt st. had to be abandoned for a time this morning and other ferry lines were reported far behind schedule.

MORRIS GEST TO GREET JOLSON

Al Jolson, the man who brought "Mammy" out of the kitchen and extolled her virtues in song for millions of listeners, arrives in town late today for the opening in the Shubert Theater tonight of his newest vehicle, "The Wonder Bar."

At the station to meet him will be Morris Gest, one time Boston newsboy, who rose to international fame as the producer of "The Miracle" and a dozen other great stage successes.

Gest is producer of "The Wonder Bar" too, but his meeting today with Al Jolson will be more than that of a manager bidding welcome to his star.

The famous pair will be renewing a Boston meeting that took place in the old Palace Theatre in Scollay sq. more than 25 years ago, when Jolson, a lad of 16, sang from the gallery while Gest peddled the latest song hits for a nickel apiece.

It was Jolson who came to the rescue of Gest with an offer of partnership in his new show after a series of reversals in the Gest fortunes. The success of "The Wonder Bar" has on inspirited Gest that he is planning a revival of "The Miracle" in Boston Garden in aid of Boston's unemployed.

Assassin Free, but Can't Leave Prison

Mexico City, Oct. 5 (AP)—Daniel Flores, who shot and wounded President Rubio in February, 1930, was granted a technical suspension of his 20-year prison sentence today by the Supreme Court, until a petition for modification of punishment is decided.

Flores remains in the Federal district penitentiary, however, although not under sentence.

SHAPLEY WIDOW IN BIG SUIT

Springfield, Oct. 5 (AP)—Suit was entered in Superior Court today against Attorney Albert Farnsworth of Boston as trustee for the estate of the late George H. Shapley, Boston banker, by Mrs. Sarah Chandler Shapley Bestrew, her second husband, Robert W. Bestrew of this city, and Attorney Ray M. Willey, his associate.

The suit is for $1,500,000 and asks an accounting of what is alleged to be a $3,000,000 estate and charges conversion of Mrs. Shapley-Bestrew's household effects and wearing apparel, said to be of storage.

NAUTILUS CREW SHOW ORDEAL

New York, Oct. 5 (AP)—Eleven men who forced the nose of the decrepit submarine Nautilus to within 18 miles of the North Pole came home today with the imprint of suffering on their faces.

Sleepless nights, poisonous air, cold that left the home and a vain struggle to keep faltering machinery to its task during a two months' battle across the Atlantic and up into the Arctic, plainly had worn them out.

"We'd go it again, but never, never again under the same conditions," says Ralph D. Shaw, submarine expert of Bridgeport, Ct., chief engineer.

Shaw disclosed that the hardships of the journey hardly got on the nerves of some of the men, he refused to elaborate beyond saying:

"There was some grumbling. We had a lot to contend with."

The 11 who returned on the liner American Banker were only half of the crew which took the submarine north from Spitzbergen under the command of Sir Hubert Wilkins. Wilkins and others are returning later.

Shaw said the voyage across the Atlantic during which the former navy submarine was crippled so badly that a battleship had to tow her to Ireland, was the most dreadful experience in his career.

When the engine quit, he said, the circulation of air was cut off and high seas rolled the old craft like a log until all except four or five were too sick to work. The temperature inside the submarine was one degree above freezing and frost a quarter of an inch thick formed inside the hull.

DESERTED CAMP GIVES CLUES TO SLAYERS

Huntington, N. Y., Oct. 5—Searchers of the Collings murder mystery worked on a new clue today following the discovery of important evidence in an abandoned camp near Prohi's Bend, yesterday.

According to Special Investigator Felix D. Martini, several milk bottles, Bridgeport (Ct.) newspapers, handwriting specimens and rope of the type used to bind Collings were filed with coroner Knoll, were discovered in the camp, located near the last anchorage of the Penguin before the sinking of Collings.

BOTTLES THE SAME

Dt. Martini declared the milk bottles were of the same kind as the broken bottle found on the Penguin and that great importance was attached to the discovery. He pointed out that an exact source of the bottle used in the killing had yet been found.

He also said that papers, torn from notebooks, were discovered bearing handwriting which he intended to compare with certain samples in his possession. The rope he also said was an important clue. Conditions about the camp indicated it had been in use for a considerable period in which to be stained, and had not been occupied for about a month.

The camp is located about three miles from the Marshall Field, Sr. estate, where Collings' body was washed ashore, and about three-quarters of a mile from the point where a second body, still unidentified, was discovered last week. It is about 1000 feet from the point where the Penguin last anchored before the sinking.

Meanwhile Dist. Atty. Kline was made the victim of a bitter verbal attack for allowing Mrs. Collings to make an unsupervised trip to Florida. Atty. William A. Keeley, of Stamford, Ct., the accused, charged that Kline had failed to furnish accurate descriptions of the man held there.

CAPONE TO FIGHT CHARGE

judge heard rumors of the deal, and he said, in effect, "Oh, is that so?" with the accent on the "that."

He said he wanted it understood that it is impossible to bargain with the federal court. Alphonse Capone's legal representatives were fearful that if they stood pat on the plea of guilty, Judge Wilkerson might "throw the book" at their client. Meaning that he might have given Alphonse Capone more time than any man could do standing on his head.

So they withdrew the plea of guilty, and substituted one of not guilty, and Alphonse Capone goes to trial before Judge Wilkerson and a jury Tuesday on the income tax violations.

Alphonse Capone never made an income tax return in his life, but your Uncle Sam claims that over some six years he had an income of $1,038,654. You Uncle Sam claims that Capone owes $215,000 in income tax.

Your Uncle Sam has noted for several years with sorrowing heart the apparent affluence in which Alphonse Capone has lived, and has finally said, "Well, where's mine?"

SAM WANTS CUT

Your Uncle Sam is, in effect, now telling Alphonse Capone for a divvy of the proceeds which it feels certain he has obtained by illegalities the past few years, and if he would also like to punish Alphonse severely for holding out on him.

Apparently certain representatives of your Uncle Sam felt that two years and a half in a federal "sweater" would have been the severe punishment desired, although the average citizen may be somewhat bewildered by the dickering with a man who has been accused of about everything but the assassination of Abraham Lincoln.

It was, I presume, regarded as a matter of expediency by the certain representatives. With Alphonse Capone doing two years and a half, standing on his head, under a plea of guilty to charges of conspiracy against the prohibition act, the prohibitionists could have drawn a long breath, and said:

"Well, we got him."

The valiant upholders of your Uncle Sam's "muscle" privileges, per the income tax, on "rackets," could have puffed out their chests, and remarked:

"Well, we got him, too."

A panel of 100 jurors, mainly from Illinois towns outside Chicago, has been summoned, and Judge Wilkerson will have them before him this afternoon for preliminary questioning. It is believed that it will take some days to accept the jury.

It is up to your Uncle Sam to prove that Alphonse Capone had an income. The exact nature of the defense is not known, but it is said that Alphonse Capone will contend that the earnings of the various ventures attributed to him really went to his brother, Ralph Capone, and to one Jack Guzik, who already have pleaded guilty to income tax violations.

BROKE, HE CLAIMS

Also it is said that the defense will assert that Alphonse Capone is now busted flatter than the Bank of the United States. He will be represented in court by a brilliant attorney named Michael J. Ahern who has been his lawyer for years, assisted by another able lawyer named Albert Fink.

Your Uncle Sam is well fortified by what the boys call "tongues," or lawyers. They will be headed by United States Dist. Atty. George E. Q. Johnson, who is accounted a fine, conscientious exponent of Blackstone.

The fact that it is Alphonse Capone they are trying in this instance is attracting nation-wide attention to the court room in the Federal Building of Chicago. The public sees in this trial a baing to the bar of justice of the most publicized man in the United States.

As a purely legal proposition, Alphonse Capone, until about ten years ago a chubby Italian youngster running the streets of Brooklyn, or being tried only for his failure to account to your Uncle Sam for his earnings.

But the public imagination sees Alphonse Capone on trial for a lot of things that anyone would have difficulty in proving. For high crimes and misdemeanors from petty larceny to responsibility for some of the 500 killings in Chicago the past few years.

RAIDERS FIND A BAR, REAL BEER

Memories of yesteryear came to poetic prohibition agents when they raided the North Associates headquarters in Braintree, it was revealed in federal court today—for in the club the agents found an old-time bar, with brass rails and all, and beautiful, foaming amber beer on tap.

More than 40 men, including prominent members of the sporting fraternity in Boston, were in the room when the raid occurred, according to the agents, who declared they believed the estate to have been leased by a Boston man well known in boxing circles.

In the raid, made late Saturday night, 11 barrels of beer were seized and the bartender and doorkeeper arrested.

In court, George Kelly of East Seventh st., South Boston, alleged to be the bartender, was held in $1000 for hearing Oct. 12, and Ernest A. Fleet of Quincy, said to be the doorkeeper, was held in $500.

R. I. BANKERS IN PISTOL DUEL

Providence, R. I., Oct. 5 (AP)—Two Federal Hill banking presidents, armed with revolvers, engaged in a battle today in which one shot was fired and one of the men went to the Rhode Island Hospital with gashes on his head inflicted by blows from the other's gun. Domenico di Luglio, president and owner of the Dante State Bank on Atwells ave., was taken in custody, and Frank Galiano, president of the Woonsocket Loan & Discount Co., also in Atwells ave., went to the hospital.

Di Luglio said Galiano had circulated stories that the bank was in "bad shape." He went to the loan firm shortly after 10 o'clock, had an argument with Galiano, and the two men fought with guns in their hands. One shot buried itself in the wall. Police said there had been bad blood between the men for seven years.

RAISBECK SLAIN, DOCTOR SAYS

Westport, Ct., Oct. 5 (AP)—Dr. William H. McMahon, medical examiner, in a new death certificate filed today, indicated that strangulation may have played a part in the puzzling death of Kenneth Raisbeck, 32, playwright of East Moline, Ill.

The death certificate gave strangulation as the cause of death, but behind the word "strangulation" Dr. McMahon placed a question mark.

Reports of laboratory tests on Raisbeck's organs served as the basis for Dr. McMahon's finding. These showed the brain was congested, while other organs were swollen. Officials expressed the opinion that Raisbeck, considerably weakened by acute meningitis, was an easy victim of strangulation.

Dr. McMahon today released the playwright's body. With Charles Raisbeck, a brother, accompanying it, the body was sent to East Moline.

Raisbeck is believed to have met his death last Tuesday night while en route from Harvard, Mass., to New York.

According to police, Jasiak admitted he pushed Campbell out of his home when he started an argument with Mrs. Jasiak.

SCIENCE VS. ANGER; A PLEA AT TIME AT MOVIES

By GILBERT SELDES

GILBERT SELDES

RALLY REJECTING intemperate speech, has al... if of the exact words used by Dr. Clarence Tra... mment enemy of Scotch and soda, in his at... ks on the American Legion. The gen... eezel brassy tone of his remarks reminds me of what the New Testament says of those who are without charity; but let that pass. It is not Dr. Wilson's attack which interests me so much as the contrast between him and Dr. Walter Timme, a member of the Neurological Institute of Columbia Medical Center, who said, almost on the very day Dr. Wilson was calling names, that gangsters and gunmen don't drink enough. Of the two statements, it would seem that the scientist's was the more deliberately shocking, and the better phrased for page one of the daily paper.

Calcium and Murder

Dr. Timme, as a serious man of science, is governed by experimenta and by certain mathematical relations. If he finds that out of 973 gunmen 754 are victims of insufficient calcium, and if another set of experiments proves that a little more alcohol might cure that defect, he feels himself justified in saying that a majority of gunmen would be the better for a drink now and then; or even for two or three additional drinks every time they feel an impulse to shoot a rival or a five-year-old girl. But the vows Dr. Timme has taken compel him to keep an open mind on the subject; if another experimenter should find that only 145 gunmen in a thousand suffer from inadequate deposits, Dr. Timme would be obliged, ethically, to withdraw his statement.

Dr. Wilson, on the contrary, is under no obligations whatever, for he is a propagandist. The voting at Detroit which offended him to the point of insulting the American soldiery wasn't unanimous. As I recall it, the vote stood about two to one; large enough a majority to indicate a general trend, but not large enough to signify the degeneracy of the American soldier. If three hundred Legionnaires had voted the other way, the Legion would not have asked for a referendum on prohibition—which, and not repeal, was what it did ask for. If a hundred and fifty had voted against, there would have been a tie. It seems to me that the vote of so small a number is insufficient data for any sweeping statement. It seems to me, also, the asking for a free vote on any subject is a legitimate exercise of American prerogatives; but that is not so important. The difference between the scientific mind and the mind of the propagandist is the essential thing.

Stagger on a Swig

A few days after Dr. Wilson spoke a meeting of the State W. C. T. U. was held in Washington and it was decided to avoid the appearance of evil, as well as evil itself. That is to say, people were warned against drinking legal near-beer for fear alcohol had crept in. One woman testified that she had seen a man take a swig out of a root-beer bottle and then stagger as if intoxicated.

I am not a scientist, but I have seen men take swigs in my time. And I deny the possibility of a good hard stagger after taking no matter how long a swig from no matter how potent a distillation. One swig does not make a stagger, ladies and gentlemen. And conscience—especially a good conscience—makes, as Shakespeare said, cowards—or was it liars?—of us all.

I spent an enjoyable evening at a moving picture house the other night, and this comes specifically under the heading, of news. I would give it a three column headline; it is better and rarer than the man biting the dog. Nothing whatever was done to annoy me; I was permitted to enter a place of entertainment, without waiting half an hour in a lobby; I was not hustled into a seat which I did not want, but allowed to choose for myself; no one saluted me. No orchestra played medleys of popular hits and semi-classics hackneyed by overuse; no ballet danced; no tenor sang; no "trailers" took up five minutes announcing what films would come to the house between now and Thanksgiving. The managers of the house had the astounding idea that patrons come to see moving pictures and they have spent a great deal of energy in seeing to it that moving pictures—and nothing else—should be there to see. They have used their brains to eliminate nuisances, which is also important.

A Sense of Guilt

I wonder whether the movies didn't have a bad conscience about a dozen years ago when the system of "presentations" and gilded ushers came into being. Did the exhibitors feel that the movies were so uninteresting in themselves that they had to add "attractions" all over the lot? Did they feel that you couldn't in all honesty ask fifty cents before six o'clock and seventy-five thereafter for nothing but a second-rate picture with a decaying comedy and a newsreel to back it up? And if this was the case, don't the theater managers know now that the movies are becoming entertaining again, and the short features are so vastly interesting that all their stage shows are an impertinent interruption to our pleasure?

Of course much of the enjoyment came from the pictures themselves. The newsreel was consistently good, especially when it showed a few gentlemen prophesying that everything would be all right this winter, followed by "the latest in gashgas." The feature shorts had Rudy Vallee (at whom one woman in the audience laughed loudly and merrily) and some views of Venice there was a Bobby Jones golf picture—a remarkably astute series this is. And then, triumph on triumph, there was one of the best of the Silly Symphonies, called Busy Beavers, and Rango. The Little Picture House in New York which selected this program and made it a pleasure to see it is to be congratulated.

DOCTOR TELLS OF 'MENTAL CONFUSION'

George C. Lincoln of Washington st., Malden, had "periods of mental confusion" two years ago, his family doctor testified today in Middlesex Probate Court, where a cousin seeks to break his $150,000 will.

Lincoln, who died at the age of 81 last January, left his fortune to the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. The will was drawn Dec. 23, 1929.

Mrs. Mabel Sherman of Dudley, the contestant, charged unsound mind and undue influence exerted by William T. Foster, executor of the will; Atty. Lindsay K. Foster, who drew it, and Minnesha Jacobs, 74, housekeeper.

LARGE SUM TO HOUSEKEEPER

Upon Lincoln's death, the latter became owner of a $25,000 bank account held jointly by her and Lincoln, received $4000 outright and an annuity of $1000 under the will of Mrs. Lincoln, who died in 1926.

Mrs. Lincoln left her estate in her husband in a will that carried provision for the society upon his death.

Dr. Carroll Burpee, Lincoln's doctor, today testified he noticed his patient "changing" after the death of Mrs. Lincoln.

"MENTAL CONFESSION"

"Until a few years ago, he dressed neatly on the street but then started to appear shabby," Dr. Burpee testified.

"He had periods of mental confusion but in rational moments could understand transactions of a simple nature. The last few weeks he seemed lost."

"I would not say he was insane. I know many people who are of unsound mind but they are not insane."

"I would say that Mr. Lincoln was of unsound mind in 1929."

RAIL MERGER BATTLE LOOMS

Washington, Oct. 5 (AP)—The speed of the Interstate Commerce Commission in handling the rate increase proposal is not likely to be duplicated in disposing of the eastern carriers' plan to consolidate into four major systems.

Long-drawn-out hearings lasting months are expected to precede the proposal that the commission be finally scrap its own consolidation plan.

On the other hand, a decision is expected soon on the petition for a 15 per cent freight rate increase. After slightly over two months of hearings the commission took the case under consideration last week. It was discussed by the commission last Thursday and Friday and again had privileged status this week.

The opinion prevails here that the decision may come down any time after October 15.

At the direction of Congress, the commission last year proposed consolidating the railroads of the country into 21 great systems. Five eastern trade routes were provided.

The New York Central, the Baltimore & Ohio, the Pennsylvania and the Van Sweringen lines looked with disfavor on the five-system plan. Saturday they presented a four-party plan.

AIMEE AND HUBBY TAKE LEAVE OF FLOCK IN WEST

'AL' SMITH AND WALKER ON RUM LIST

New York, Oct. 5 (INS)—Names of political leaders, financiers and members of the 400 have been found in the records of Dr. Beverly Sproul, whose arrest as a "big Hun" rum pioneer using airplanes was revealed today.

Mayor James J. Walker, former Gov. Alfred E. Smith and Mrs. Payne Whitney are listed in the records, according to agents under Horace J. Simmons of the Department of Justice, who captured Sproul after a year's investigation of rum-running by air between Montreal and New York.

HELD IN $10,000

Sproul, wealthy retired dentist, boasts, agents declare, that he was "hooligan-proof" in the extent that no smuggled aliens ride the country on planes and also brought in narcotics and counterfeits.

For the present he is held only on prohibition charges under $10,000 bail.

His records, one airplane and one of his fleet of fast automobiles were seized by federal officers, on arrest Saturday, at Broadway and Seventy-third st.

Also on his lists, agents said, were these names:

Jules Leon, David Lowe, Robert Lowe, Jess Pattenson, Allan A. Ryan, Hermione Tweed, J. J. Unger, Richard Bernard, Harry Forsythe and Vincent Evans.

Records after his capture, willingly brought forth checks from $400 to $2000 which bore the signatures of some of the persons listed in his accounts.

The storied owner of a huge estate at Lake Placid and of the Beverly Inn in Montreal, used two airplanes to convey liquor from Montreal to Albany, it is alleged. From the capital the liquor was brought into New York city on a fleet of automobiles, it is charged.

Informed that his name was on Dr. Sproule's record, Mayor Walker said:

"I never heard of this Sproule. I have no bootlegger, anyway."

Of the possibility that the federal judge might call the persons whose names were listed, the mayor said:

"I will be glad to help them I many way I can."

"Five Star Final" to Open on Schedule

On his arrival in Boston last night, William A. Brady, theatrical producer, declared that while in New York he had received an intimation that his play, "Five Star Final," would be banned here, but that he had received no official notification and intends to put the play on as scheduled at the Wilbur Theater Wednesday night.

The play, which deals with sensational journalism, will be viewed by City Censor John M. Casey, Wednesday night, and no action is expected to be taken until after he has seen it.

Main Break Floods Sub-Treasury Cellar

New York, Oct. 5—Wall Street, center of financial America, was visited by a $100,000 flood yesterday when a huge water main near the Chase National Bank on Nassau st. broke and sent tons of water roaring into the cellar of the United States Sub-Treasury building.

Old records in the Sub-Treasury cellar were damaged, but the water did not reach untold millions of gold stored in the building.

One Currency for World, With U. S. Backing It, Urged

Berlin, Oct. 5 (AP)—The newspaper Montag Morgen carried a dispatch from Basel today saying considerable interest has been aroused there by a suggestion for establishment of an international currency as a weapon against unsettled economic conditions.

As outlined in the Swiss press, the dispatch said, the currency could be based on a deposit of one billion gold dollars in the world bank, France contributing one-third and the United States most of the balance.

AIMEE ADVANCE FORCES ARRIVE

The advance guard of Aimee Semple McPherson-Hutton's forces in the persons of her business manager, F. C. Winters, his wife and Henry Charles Marty, 19, evangelistic pianist, arrived here today.

They immediately started preparations for the evangelist's coming on Thursday, and young Marty announced he would hold a choir rehearsal at Boston Garden tonight. He went to the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Nelson, 42 Mill st., Dorchester.

Mr. and Mrs. Winters were met at the South Station by Rev. W. Lloyd McLam of Dorchester and W. J. Graham, general agent for the Boston & Albany Railroad, and were taken to the Hotel Manger.

Making an appeal for a large number of choir singers and general co-operation to make the nine-day evangelist campaign here a success, Winters said that he expected a crowd of 20,000 would storm Boston Garden on the first night Aimee speaks.

Mrs. Winters, also an evangelist will aid in conducting the meetings.

'WE LANDED TO PLAY IT SAFE': PANGBORN

Wenatchee, Wash, Oct. 5 (INS)—"It was touch and go whether we could make Salt Lake City and a new long distance flight record, so we decided to play safe and land in Wenatchee."

Thus Clyde Pangborn explained to International News Service in the first interview given by the transpacific fliers, why he and Hugh Herndon ended their flight in Wenatchee today.

"We saw some severe storms along the Russian coast and encountered heavy fog along the American coast," Pangborn continued.

"When we reached Spokane this morning we saw that it was a question of whether we would have gasoline sufficient to establish a new long distance record. We decide dithen we would turn back and make our landing at Wenatchee.

"We went from one apple country to another," he said smiling.

The section from which the fliers left Japan is noted as the Japanese apple country, while Wenatchee is famed as the "apple capital of the world."

"Our motor functioned perfectly throughout the flight.

"We took off in good fashion in Sasnshiro, Japan, and gained altitude rapidly.

"We dropped our landing gear three hours out of Japan and that boosted our speed.

"We plan to go on to Dallas, Tex., as soon as our mite can be repaired and a new runway can be built at the local airport."

Socialists Victors at Spanish Polls

Madrid, Oct. 5. (AP)—Early returns from yesterday's interim elections to the National Assembly indicate that the Socialistic government allies won a sweeping victory.

Of the 35 districts voting, they appear to have emerged in with the Lerroux Radical Republicans, also supporting the government, winning seven seats. The four other parties campaigning each elected one candidate.

Aimee Says Woman's Place Is Where Man Loves and Prays

If So, Some Would Have to Be Acrobats, Tex Guinan Avers

Woman's place in the world is discussed in two articles by two women who have achieved success in widely separated fields. Mrs. Aimee Semple McPherson Hutton, noted evangelist, is founder of Angelus Temple, Los Angeles, and of four square gospel churches throughout the world. Texas Guinan is widely known as a night club hostess and entertainer.

By AIMEE SEMPLE HUTTON

Aimee Semple McPherson Hutton

Wherever men live, work, love and pray, there is woman's place in the world. In triumph or defeat, in gayety or sorrow, woman's place is by the side of man. It is with her husband, no matter what his lot in life may be, with her sweetheart when she is single and destiny calls with her father when on that woman's own particular place in the world.

Has it not been said:

"Who can find a virtuous woman for her price is far above rubies."

"The seeketh wool, and flax, and worketh willingly with her hands."

"She riseth also while it is yet night, and giveth meat to her household."

"Strength and honor are her clothing; and she will rejoice in time to come."

"Favor is deceitful and beauty is vain, but a woman that feared the Lord, she shall be praised."

BEHIND THE SCENES

Time cannot change a woman's place in the world. Behind the world's work is woman. Her faith and courage, her patience and devotion, are behind successes and events that write today, as ever before, humanity's growth.

No mountain is too high, no wilderness too barren, no frontier too remote for woman to be with her loved ones. In war and peace she has played her part, and she always will.

If woman was the first to bring sin to the world, she must do her share in driving it out.

From the Garden of Eden to the latest war tangle that is being brewed in political cauldrons of Europe women has had her share and her responsibility.

Of course woman has a place in the pulpits of the world.

Some folk raise their arms and eyebrows at the thought of a woman preaching the gospel—a modern Evangelist preaching an old-fashioned gospel.

WORK TO DO

Christ preached his first sermon to a woman.

Today, when standards crumble when so many right of things are agitating for the tinsel and glitter of things that do not last, woman has work to do.

To man's strength woman can bring tenderness and understanding.

To his determination and endurance woman can bring sympathy and intuition.

There may not be any need today for a Deborah to lead armies, but there are other things that woman may do aside from attending bridge parties and teas.

Woman has a right and a duty to become interested in civic affairs. Anything that tends to change standards of living and thinking should claim her attention.

Woman's influence at the right time in millions of homes will build millions of homes with influence.

The Bible tells us about woman.

"She openeth her mouth with wisdom, and in her tongue is the law of kindness."

And the Bible also tells us of woman's place in the world.

"Give her the fruit of her hands and let her own works praise her in the gates."

Aimee's view on life is a little different from mine. She says that woman's place is at the side of her man, her husband, sweetheart, father or son. I don't think that woman's scope is so limited.

When Betsy Ross made the first flag of our United States she didn't think she was helping one of the one person she loved. She stayed by the country she loved.

Joan of Arc saved the crown of France for the love of her own conscience.

If woman's place should be next to her man, then Peggy Hopkins Joyce would have to be an acehat.

Woman's place is with her enemy if she can render humanity service. Aimee must have forgotten that part of the Scriptures which says, "Love thy neighbor as thyself."

EACH TO HIS OWN

Woman's place in life is in the heart of the man and woman whose she can do the greatest amount of good. Religion means service, and when we have served either our beloved or our enemy, we have made religion just another little dramatic incident.

God does not need the pulpit, nor do the people who want to accept him. Every man's heart is his pulpit. And, believe me, the pulpit needs just as much cleansing as do some people's hearts.

In some men's hearts there is only standing room space; in others, there is so much cracked ice that a lot of people get frostbitten.

This may sound as though I'm against marriage. I'm not.

Life is good. Enjoy it. Live it to suit yourself. But make sure that it does not influence the other fellow in a degrading way, and you have been guided by the hand of God.

Religious evangelists always have found time to revive the bad and convert them to what they believe is good. Maybe the evangelist is wrong, too. Let him try and have for a change a revival that exalts the good. By example we follow. Human beings are like animals and follow the leader. Praise the good and the bad will give way.

ADMIRES AIMEE

I admire Aimee Semple McPherson Hutton because she is a go-getter. She has established a definite place for herself in life. But sometimes her religion gets the best of her. She goes fanatical. And fanatics, like geniuses, get inhuman. And Aimee is truly a human woman. She lived a modern life as well as a human one. So let her humanity and experiences in it be the four-square gospel.

A woman is entitled to a place in the pulpit with the same freedom as a man.

Aimee McPherson has probably done more good than any one person I know. But she has done it through her dramatic ability, her physical self. She has saved the spirit by the way of the flesh.

I stand ready at any time to meet Aimee in public debate—in the Boston Garden or anywhere else. But she must agree that the entire proceeds shall be donated to the unemployed of the city in which we do our talking.

TARIFF TRUCE WILL BE URGED AT PARLEY

Washington, Oct. 5 (AP)—A two-year tariff truce will be proposed by the Cuban delegation to the Pan-American commercial conference which convened here today with 21 American republics in attendance.

The proposal will be presented at tomorrow's plenary session. The draft says one of the principal causes of the economic crisis affecting the American republics is high duties and a marked tendency to go on increasing them.

Word of the Cuban plan coincided with Mexico City dispatches saying the Mexican delegation would attempt to form an anti-American tariff bloc among the South and Central American groups.

Silas H. Strawn, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, todd the 500 delegates adoption by the southern republics of the American flexible tariff policy would go a long way toward bringing order out of chaos in the world tariff situation.

Secretary Lamont, chairman of the American delegation, stressed the need of expanding the gross volume of international trade rather than attempts to balance commerce between any two countries.

Let Navy Keep Football Team

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

Well, they've sliced the navy down to the bone. And they're gnawing at that.

They've tweezed the eyebrows right out of the glorious old battle fleet that once sailed so proudly up the Hudson for repairs.

In an effort to make both ends of the budget meet the administration has taken a twenty per cent slash at history, patriotism and glory.

In a way it is right. What's left of the American mercantile marine can be protected by a night watchman on a bicycle.

Budget must be chiseled sixty-one million dollars. And, as usual, the sailors are being blamed for what happened on shore.

One by one, our historic craft are filling and sinking. First it was the Merrimac. Next it was Bill Taft's marble bathtub. And Now, it's the whole works.

That ain't the worst of it. Who's going to play West Point?

35 Mexicans Slain, Refusing to Work

Mexico City, Oct. 5 (INS)—Thirty-five field workers in the village of San Carlos, Tabasco, were slaughtered by mounted officials because they refused to work without pay on a state road, according to dispatches from Villahermosa today.

The riflemen, the dispatches said, were under the command of Governor Tomas Garrido Canabal.

Rites at Taunton for Warner's Father

Taunton, Oct. 5. Funeral services were held yesterday in Taunton Unitarian church for Attorney Richard E. Warner, father of Assistant Attorney General Joseph E. Warner. Rev. Don Huntington Sears of Chestnut Hill Unitarian Church, Brookline, officiated.

Gov. Joseph B. Ely was represented by state auditor Thomas N. Hurley and his secretary, Captain Vincent F. Coyne.

U. S. FLIERS LAND IN WASHINGTON STATE FROM JAPAN

their excess gasoline to prevent any possible outbreak of fire when they hit the ground minus their landing gear, which had been dropped shortly after their take-off at Sasnshiro Beach, Japan.

The plane landed on her "belly," tipped over on her nose and then settled back. She slid along slowly in a cloud of dust.

The plane came to rest on its left wing. Its propeller was smashed in the landing. Aviators described it as a "fish tail" landing.

MOTHER IN TEARS

Pangborn's mother was raving as the fliers left the plane. Herndon had a cut over his left eye.

Richard E. Warner, father of Assistant Attorney General Joseph E. Warner, Rev. Don Huntington Sears of Chestnut Hill Unitarian Church officiated.

Gov. Joseph B. Ely was represented by state auditor Thomas N. Hurley and his secretary, Captain Vincent F. Coyne.

After Pangborn had been greeted by his mother and his brother, Percy G. Pangborn, two representatives of the Japanese paper that offered the $25,000 prize for the flight stepped up and offered their congratulations.

"We are very glad to see you boys here," they said.

"We're glad to be here," Herndon and Pangborn smiled back.

Plans had been made to rush the aviators to a hotel for rest, but the crowd kept them at the airport more than an hour.

MRS. HERNDON IN N. Y.

Mrs. Herndon, who married the aviator in New York just before Herndon and Pangborn left on the round-the-world adventure, made an effort to telephone her husband from the Eastern city shortly after news of the landing was broadcast. Mrs. Herndon is the daughter of James Farley, New York boxing commissioner.

The biggest thrill of the flight, the airmen said, occurred when their engine stopped after they had flown about 3000 miles. They realized for a moment that the cause was the draining of one gas line tank and they switched to another in time to get the motor going again.

Tilt said they averaged about 12,000 feet altitude all the way. Each man wore wool sox without shoes.

"We've been in Japan so long we're still going barefooted," Pangborn said.

They had 100 gallons of gas left. They explained it was too soggy for them to go to Salt Lake City.

"The reason we came back was because we like the Apple Capital," Pangborn said.

Wenatchee is a center of the apple industry in Washington.

"Ma, you don't even look tired," Mrs. Pangborn said.

FLEW OVER SEATTLE

Their route brought them over Vancouver Island, they said. They circled Mount Rainier three times and passed over Seattle shortly after 3 a. m.

"I knew Clyde would make it," Mrs. Pangborn exclaimed as friends crowded about her to congratulate her.

Although she had hoped her son would land here, she was more than content to have him continue eastward toward the long distance record they sought at Salt Lake City, Utah. That would have meant breaking the record of 5010 miles set by Russell Boardman and John Polando, Boston fliers, who went non-stop from Brooklyn to Istanbul, Turkey, last July.

In addition to the hundreds who waited at the airport all night to greet the fliers, hundreds of others rushed there as word spread that they had landed. The road leading to the airport, three miles from the city, was quickly clogged with traffic.

BAROGRAPH FAILS

They said the fact their barograph was not functioning was one other reason they did not continue in an attempt to break the Boardman-Polando distance record.

Their flight from Japan to the United States required 41 hours.

They left Sasnshiro at 5:01 p. m., eastern standar dtime, Saturday, and landed today at 10:14 a. m., Eastern standard time.

Pangborn and Herndon flew in the plane in which they unsuccessfully attempted to break the speed record of Wiley Post and Harold Gatty around the world.

They gave up the attempt flying across the Atlantic, Europe and Asia to Petropovlovsk, Siberia.

From Petropavlovsk they flew to Tokyo and promptly came into conflict with Japanese law for flying over and taking photographs of Japanese fortified areas. They were fined and permission to take their plane from Tokyo to Samushiro to start a transpacific flight was withheld for some time.

Pangborn is a veteran pilot from Seattle, Wash., who spen ta number of years as an itinerant aircus performer. Herndon, on the other hand, is a wealthy New York aeronautical enthusiast who has been flying for sport rather than fortune.

M'DONALD AND LLOYD GEORGE IN PARLEY

London, Oct. 5 (AP)—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald ran down to Surrey today and talked for two hours with David Lloyd George, leader of the Liberal Party, who is recuperating from an illness at his country place in Churt.

Lloyd George is too ill to come to London and MacDonald sought his views regarding the general election which almost everyone expects before the end of this month.

There was no statement from either. MacDonald came back to town for a meeting of the cabinet.

In Scarborough, Arthur Henderson, new leader, made a brief address at the opening of the annual conference of the Labor Party today and was tendered a vociferous welcome.

Henderson said:

"We can only follow the sound and safe policy," he said, "of having our lamps trimmed and ready to step into the fray whenever the election proclamation is issued."

40-Passenger Plans May Come to Boston

Efforts are being made by Pan-American Airways officials to bring the 40-passenger Sikorsky amphibian S-40 to Boston next week before she makes her initial flight from Bridgeport, t., to Washington, on Oct. 13.

This big plane, which has four motors and is capable of making 140 miles an hour, will operate from Miami, Fla., to Havana. She flies to Florida, Oct. 20. When she goes to Washington next Tuesday she will be christened by President Hoover. It was rumored at the airport today that her sister ship, also being built at Bridgeport, may operate from Boston to Halifax, N. S.

Here you see the revenue men checking the sacks as they are unloaded.

"The federal government is capable of raising billions for war purposes in case of emergency," it was stated. "Now in this great emergency of peace times, the government should step into the breach to relieve the heavy burden of unemployment."

The party in completing its platform, also favored repeal of the Volstead act.

Dick, who has appeared before the Interstate Commerce Commission as a representative of holders of millions of dollars in railroad bonds, dismissed bus, waterway, and taxation difficulties as incapable of quick solution.

You purchase shoes, fruit and candy. You call for cigarettes.

It's like this: WHEN YOU GO TO BUY A PAIR OF SHOES, you examine the leather, the way the shoes are made, their shape. You try them to see if they fit—if they satisfy you.

Why not follow the same method in purchasing your cigarettes? You want cigarettes that are made from the very best tobacco—mild, ripe, sweet. You want them made right. You want them free from harshness and bite and "pinches." In other words, you want cigarettes that satisfy you.

WHEN YOU GO TO BUY FRUIT—oranges, grapefruit, apples—you want ripe fruit, fruit that has matured before being taken from the tree; fruit that has been handled right and packed right; fruit that's the same throughout—not green on one side and ripe on the other.

Why not apply the same test in purchasing your cigarettes? You want cigarettes made from tobaccos handled right by the farmer—ripened, sweetened in the sun and cured right. You want cigarettes that taste the same, day in and day out. You want them pleasing in taste—mild and satisfying.

WHEN YOU BUY CANDY, you want to know, above all things, that it is pure. Is it real candy or are there a lot of other things mixed in with it? And you want it fresh. You want it freshly made and you want it so packed as to reach you just as it was when it was made.

Why not apply the same test when you buy your cigarettes? You want a cigarette that's pure; for purity counts in cigarettes just as it does in candy. Then again, you want a cigarette that's just as fresh as when it was made.

Now, if you apply to cigarettes all the tests that you apply in buying shoes and fruit and candy you will purchase CHESTERFIELD like millions of other smokers.

First, because tobacco men will tell you that in Turkey, Kentucky, Georgia, the Carolinas, Virginia, and Maryland, only the mildest, ripest tobacco is bought for CHESTERFIELD—tobacco cured by the sun's pure rays, by the farmers' slow-burning ovens, and finally by great high-pressure steam drying machines. In the tobacco regions where they grow tobacco and know tobacco, CHESTERFIELD is usually the leading seller.

Second, because the carefully selected CHESTERFIELD tobacco leaves are blended and cross-blended. This exclusive CHESTERFIELD blending method is not just mixing together different tobaccos—it is mixing them in such a way as to bring out the finer qualities of each. It's like producing a new and better type of tobacco—tobacco with greater mildness, more smoothness, much better taste.

Third, because the cigarette paper is selected with the same care. CHESTERFIELD paper is the purest, the best that money can buy. Then the cigarettes are made and packed by machinery in clean, sanitary factories. And the moisture-proof, attractive package—free from heavy inks or inky odor—comes to you just as if you passed the factory in the morning and took your CHESTERFIELDS from the machine.

Good . . . they've got to be good.

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

The drama of upper Stuart st. is on its way again. The Copley Theater is relighted, new faces gaze at you from across the footlights, and smart plays, domestic and foreign, are promised as the season's regular fare.

After the performance of "Tonight or Never" on Saturday it was acknowledged on all sides that Mr. E. E. Underhill's new hand of players got away from the tape in good order, which should be praise enough for any stock company cruising new and uncharted waters. To the utmost playgoer there was an element of surprise in the performance, but your search for them yielded nothing. No important spot was left uncovered.

Nicholas Young

Aldrich Bowker, the "faithful dog" who served both as accompanist and adviser to the stormy prima donna, was at true to color as any artist could paint; Francis Compton, the only player not a stranger to his audience, carried on with vigor as a middle aged gentleman of means who liked the ladies, while Joseph Cotten did the youthful lover with great fervor and commendable discretion. Helen Ray, in one scene, displayed qualities that should soon make her a favorite of those who pled to Mr. Underhill's stage playhouse.

* * *

If anything was made certain at this first performance of "Tonight or Never" it was the happy discovery that the best stock company since Boston Museum days is giving its trade in the Copley Square region; that its selection of plays, if one may speculate on Saturday's salutatory, gives assurance of pleasant days to come.

Pathos and Humor Fill 'Bad Girl'

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

"Bad Girl" packs the box office punch. The Vina Delmar story makes the screens at the Uptown and Olympia hum with its pathos and its humor; dide primarily to its handling by Director Frank Borzage.

Borzage refused to surrender too much power to the "mike"; throwing his support rather to the superior might of his camera, he makes them tell the tale. And well do they do it. A rather flimsy little narrative, as a result, takes on all the depth of true drama, the tempo is fast, the movie crammed with humanly interesting situations. Borzage's imaginative treatment of his theme is something worth praising. He makes "Bad Girl" easy, and admirable throughout, reeking with the homely fun of life, and life's sorrows, and then one up to the point of tears, and then suddenly sending you into laughter.

Not an much to the plot, a big city girl, who works in live, meets up with a boy. They wed. He doesn't want any children; his big business with is to own a store. But the story is coming; the baby seeks to conceal the fact. But he learns the truth. So he works all the harder. The little odds and ends of life bring down upon their heels; hubby and wife get mad, but the baby arrives and brings the sunshine again.

Not so much to intrigue you in that outline, and yet Borzage has made a picture you will like.

James Dunn gives an outstanding performance.

Orchestra Is Feature at Boston

By HARRIS MORGAN

The Cocoanut Grove Orchestra, directed by Joe Solomon and assisted by Mary Lee, red-headed dancing star, and Jackie Beckman, heads the vaudeville bill at the RKO Keith-Boston. Solomon's masterful leadership and his personality are a big asset to the headline act.

Emile Boreo, international musical comedy star, is a highlight of the bill. Presenting an act of headline calibre he won an ovation. His impersonation of Maurice Chevalier wins him several encores. His facial expressions put "over" his songs in a big way.

Mario and Lazarin vocalize several song hits; Sammy Lewis and Patti Moore are the gagsters on the bill, and the Stewart-Violette duo show some plain and very fancy cycling.

Evelyn Brent is the star of "Pagan Lady" on the screen. The plot is a familiar one about the wild girl who seeks respectability and marriage. She is taken from a Havana cafe by the hero, Dingo, a bootlegger, impersonated by Charles Bickford.

The two-fisted hero quenches his way out of the cafe and takes his "moll" to Florida. Conrad Nagel, portraying a missionary student, steps into the picture and the "Pagan Lady" almost falls, but the bootlegger hero grabs her and promises to marry her, and the student returns to his studies.

Waldron's Casino

Waldron's Casino today presents Vida Veda in "The Rounders" burlesque, with the new star appearing in the spectacular dances for which she is noted on European as well as American stages. Gwen Lee Bayne, Jane Wiate and Viola Spaeth will have fitting roles and there will be a quartet of comedians. Besides burlesque, Waldron's bill includes vaudeville and talkies.

Farce Scores at Fine Arts

Laugh in the Fine Arts Theater this week and you'll find the whole house laughing with you. In "Der Hempelmann," which in English is "The Puppet," turns at to be one of the cleverest of il farce films, bar none.

Its fun gets you, and keeps you s rollicking time right up to the nd. That its dialogue is German doesn't matter; for a style of east mimes in since fashion hat you get the full humor, and ne little or nothing of this larious movie.

Based on an operetta, the picture boasts rarely tuneful melodies, several hauntingly good. The plot has a novel angle: a chap in love substitutes himself for a mechanical doll, and is thus introduced into the home of his beloved.

The film is tiptop in every way, and its acting particularly is something to delight in. Manager Krasky is "Der Hampelmann" has picked one of his own ninth-makers, a picture meriting a longer run than the usual.

Carl Laemmle, Sr., Is Paid Big Tribute by His One-Time Rival

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service
(Copyright, 1931, by Universal Service)

Albuquerque, New Mex., Oct. 5—I have never seen Carl Laemmle, Sr., in such fine spirits. He told me funny story after funny story and some of them very good, too. Mr. Laemmle, with the weight of production on the shoulders of his capable son, Carl, Jr., feels that for the first time in his life he can sit back and let someone else take the bows, or the blame.

Louella O. Parsons

But, while Mr. Laemmle was in Europe he wasn't exactly idle. He bought a play, "The Invisible Man," from H. G. Wells and he plans to make it Universal's super-production for 1932. Also he was the guest of honor at a luncheon given him by the French motion picture producers, Mr. Laemmle, you see, is producing in England, France and Germany.

Among the guests was George Melius, one of the oldest pioneers in the motion picture industry. Mr. Melius at one time was associated with the old Pathe Co., and on the opposite side of the fence from Mr. Laemmle. But, in his speech, Mr. Melius paid a glowing tribute to his one-time rival. Charles Pathe, who founded the old Pathe Co., Mr. Laemmle said, is 80 years old and has retired with many millions to his credit. He is living outside of Paris.

Seen and Heard

A rumor that has been growing every day concerns the wife of one of our well-known producers. She is supposed to be seeking a divorce from him although neither she nor her husband will confirm the gossip. Lawrence Tibbett leaves October 6th on a concert tour. We have seen Lawrence at several parties, gay and happy, and we've seen Mrs. Tibbett at luncheon looking not so happy. Hollywood is laughing over an amusing letter from Mrs. Cecil De Mille. Mrs. De Mille said that she was warned before she left for Europe that she might be mobbed when she got over there. But in her letter, she confesses the only one who knew about Cecil was a clerk in a Tunis hotel.

A combination of more than ordinary interest is that of Alice Joyce and Tom Moore in "A Marriage Has Been Arranged." This is an Alfred Butts play and it will open in Long Beach in another week. Miss Joyce was formerly the wife of Tom Moore, and although they have been divorced for some years, Alice and Tom have remained friends.

* * *

"Blue Blazes" sounds like a comedy. Furthermore, it is a comedy. Can you doubt it with Louise Fazenda as chief technician and with Slim Summerville playing up to her in a scene? Clive Clive and Frankie Albertson furnish the juvenile interest, and Vic Moore will direct. Just so I'm informed while writing this someone asked me if I would be interested in seeing a short called "Odd Jobs." It seems Leon Schlesinger has just completed a short subject which shows a number of strange ways people have of earning a living. Just by way of example one man raises strange butterflies and, in turn, makes them into ornaments.

Jack Holt Starred

An original that Harry Cohn believes is different, is "Secret Service." Jos Swerling wrote it and after the Columbia experts passed on it, Jack Holt was pagged. He is finishing a football picture and when the last scene is filmed he will start work on "Secret Service," to be directed by John Francis Dillon. That's another one for Mr. Dillon was formerly with First National. He has now joined the Harry Cohn Company —and "Secret Service" is his first.

The most blase and bored looking man is Adolphe Menjou. I started to feel sorry for him and thought perhaps he was missing Mirian Hopkins or that life wasn't treating him well. People who had known him for years laughed at me and said that's the way he always looks. He shouldn't be really so bored with life for he is to write the adaptation for "The Rich Are With Us" for Warner Brothers. That's to be Kay Francis' next picture and that ought to be inspiration enough for any author even if he is tired of Hollywood life.

"Flashes" Tops Scollay Bill

A revue, "Flashes," is the headliner at the Scollay today. "Flashes" is in reality a unit presentation, or stage band show, and gets its name from the fact that it is made up of flashes of song, dance and comedy, in fact, flashes of everything that goes to make up 75 minutes of entertainment.

Charlie Hatch and the Scollay Rhythm Boys will serve as the background for the "Flashes" unit.

The featured attraction in the big stage show will be Murray and Alan, two clever young chaps. Mme. Lenora's dancers, eight girls who know their dance steps, will be seen in a series of routines out of the ordinary.

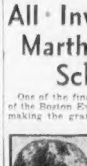
Cooking School Preparations Complete for Opening at Statler Tomorrow

All Invited to Martha Lee's School

One of the final accomplishments of the Boston Evening American in making the grand ballroom of the Hotel Statler ready for the Boston American Cooking School is the selection and arrangement of an imposing array of gifts for the housekeepers of Greater Boston.



Martha Lee

These gifts have been donated by the merchants of the city, and not only constitute an important part of the kitchen arrangement and stage array which will greet the eyes of the big audience tomorrow afternoon.

These gifts, which include kitchen and household equipment, are surrounded with other devices for modern home efficiency, with the result that Mrs. Shockley's kitchen is a marvel to behold. In the stage kitchen, Mrs. Shockley, who has been brought to Boston by the Boston Evening American, will begin her four-day session of cooking school, tomorrow at 2 o'clock.

ALL ARE INVITED

Every housekeeper in Boston is invited to attend. No tickets are required and no seats are reserved. But every woman who attends is urged to bring along her sharpest pencil and a note book.

Each day's recipes will be distributed in printed leaflet form, but while these are being demonstrated on the stage, questions may arise as to the handling of the ingredients, time for baking and other manipulation.

A Norge "Sentimental" Model Electric Refrigerator from General Equipment Co. of Boston is one of the outstanding gifts that will be awarded to some fortunate visitor.

Norge is well known as "a lifetime refrigerator," and its graceful, simple and beautiful cabinet is the envy of every woman's soul.

A Lynn Glenwood Gas Range is another wonderful gift that some one is going to be given. We have most Glenwood Gas Ranges in the Martha Lee Cooking School for five years and we attribute the fact that we have never had a failure in our baking entirely to the dependable even heat of this wonderful range.

DINETTE SET

The Frank Ferdinand, Inc., is giving away a five-piece Colonial dinette set, one of the nationally famous "Dinah-Dee" sets in solid maple or oak with automatic extension leaf table and four box-seated chairs.

A Lynn Range Oil Burner, famous throughout New England will be another interesting gift.

From the C. F. Hovey Co. comes the gift of a Sunbeam Mixer, a complete mixer that will beat your eggs, cakes, potatoes; in fact, everything beatable.

One of the famous Eureka Vacuum Cleaners will be another gift and comes from the Eureka Vacuum Cleaner Co. of Boston.

One or more of these major prizes will be given away each day of the Boston American Cooking School, so it will be to your interest to be present at each of the sessions.

The women folks are urged to bring the men along, if they are free tomorrow afternoon or any other afternoon this week.

They will come in handy to carry home these gift market baskets, filled to overflowing with useful, good foods and soaps. Twenty-five of these baskets will be distributed at each session.

MACARONI LENGTHENS MEAT FLAVOR

Macaroni boiled in salted water till tender is the foundation for this loaf. The macaroni is mixed with bread crumbs, eggs, seasoning and meat. Bake in a moderate oven for 30 to 45 minutes and serve with brown gravy. It is a most economical dish.

Economical Macaroni Meat Loaf Stretches Your Budget

From Martha Lee's Monday Morning Broadcast Over Station WAAB

Right now, when so many of us are trying to make one dollar do the work of two, I think a new and unusual meat loaf is something worth trying.

It being one of the more expensive items in our menus, can be taken to go further by extending the meat flavor as far as possible with such bland and less expensive foods as macaroni, spaghetti, rice, bread and vegetables.

For a package of macaroni is boiled rapidly in salted water for 20 minutes. The elbow macaroni is usually nice in this loaf. One cup bread crumbs is taken from the center of a loaf of bread—(and since that your kiddies are coming for the valuable prizes offered by a firm of famous bakers for cartoons made by school children—and to this is added 1 tbsp. grated onion, ½ chopped green pepper, 1 tbsp. of chopped parsley and 1 tsp. of salt. Next, 3 eggs are beaten slightly and added with ½ cup of milk and ¾ lbs. of ground lean meat. The mixture is packed firmly into a buttered bread pan and set in a moderate oven, at 325 degrees, 30 to 45 minutes.

TOMATOES WITH LOAF

A delicious with this loaf. To make the Creole Sauce, or brown gravy with currant jelly dissolved in it, add 1 slice of onion, ¼ green pepper and 1 stalk of minced celery and simmer a few minutes longer. To this add 1 small can of tomatoes and cook until the liquid is reduced about one-third. Thicken with a little flour and water, as you would for gravy. Salmon or tuna fish can be used very nicely in place of meat in this recipe and I think you will find it tasty, delicious and a money-saver.

MACARONI AND CLAMS AU GRATIN

1 No. 1 can minced clams
¾ cup milk
2 tbsps. butter
3 tbsps. flour
1 tsp. salt
¼ tsp. pepper
½ cups cooked macaroni
Buttered crumbs

Drain the liquor from the clams. Make a sauce of the liquor, milk, butter, flour and seasonings. Combine the clams, macaroni and sauce. Turn into a greased baking dish, cover with crumbs and bake in a moderate oven. Garnish with parsley and a dash of paprika.

Time in baking, ½ hour at 350 degrees. Serves six.

MACARONI CHEESE TIMBALES

1 cup grated cheese
1½ cups milk
½ tsp Worcestershire sauce
2 eggs
Salt
1½ cups cooked macaroni

Blend well the grated cheese, milk, well beaten eggs and seasonings. Divide the macaroni equally among six custard cups and fill cups with the cheese mixture. Set in a pan of hot water and bake in a moderate oven until firm, 40 minutes, at 350 deg. This serves 6.

A booklet of macaroni and spaghetti recipes is waiting for your post card request. Want it?

Faithfully yours,
Martha Lee

Good Results From Flour

"What flour do you use in your cooking school?" is one of the most frequent questions asked us and we're always delighted to tell about the unbleached flour that gives us such excellent results in all kinds of cooking.

The manufacturers of this flour are making a very special offer to you. Enough of this unbleached flour to bake two cakes or two loaves of bread, a cook book of 150 tested recipes and a fairy story painting book for children, with 12 colored pictures, directions for the painting and a set of Japanese water colors.

There are 48 pages in this painting book and every one of them fascinating. All of this for only 25 cents. Tell you where to send your quarter if you don't already know. And I think you'll agree with me that it's the biggest 25 cents worth that you've obtained for many a long day.

The disappointment experienced by so many of our customers in not being able to secure some of the POTATOES that were on SALE last week-end has given us considerable concern. We made every effort to supply each store daily with sufficient quantities, but because of the fact that our price was so unusually low—the lowest in several years—the demand positively staggered us. FROM THURSDAY MORNING UNTIL LATE SATURDAY WE SENT TO OUR STORES 43 CARLOADS OF POTATOES, TOTALLING 16,126 BAGS OF 100 POUNDS EACH OR 107,500 PECKS OF 15 LBS. EACH. "TONIGHT OR NEVER" OPENED AT THE COPLEY THEATER Saturday night, the first in a series of six plays at popular prices, sponsored by Francis Grover Cleveland, Samuel C. Endicott, Albert Flower, Mrs. Charles Peabody, Mrs. Thomas J. Preston, Mrs. Ezra R. Thayer, E. E. Underhill and Mr. Henry G. Wells.

FELICE LEEDS

Felice Leeds, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Leeds, and one of the charming debutantes of the past season, has charge of the subscription list. She has been studying at the Gloucester School of the Little Theater this summer and hopes to be included in the cast of some of the plays to be given at the Copley this season.

Lillian Gahagan played to a crowded house and was enthusiastically received. The play was just another sex thing, but amusing if you like them. A distinguished guest whom we noted in the audience was Morris Gest and how we LONGED to meet him, but what could WE say to a genius? He has the most human eyes, so deep and keen and kind. Seeing him was OUR big thrill of the evening.

Greets Friends in the Lobby

MRS. LEEDS WAS IN THE LOBBY GREETING MANY friends and we had a little chat with her. She is very brunette, like daughter Felice, and tall, and looks very much more like a sister than a mother to her family. Her black Chantilly lace dinner gown was very beautiful. Accompanying her was Mrs. Mason, also in black, but of a supple velvet, which set off her blonde coloring. In spite of an extra pound or so, which must have been acquired this summer, Mrs. Charles Cotting was very smart in blonde lace, escorted by Mr. Cotting, whom we hear—sah! is terribly jealous of his pretty wife.

EVIDENTLY THERE TO SEE what it was all about was Mrs. Evans Dick and sub-deb daughter, Emily, a very lovely child. Mrs. Dick was interested in the new Magnolia theater this summer, which was an artistic success. A debutante of the past season, Betty Spalding, was enjoying the show with Eddie Locke and a party of friends, and Mrs. H. Sohier Shaw graced the occasion in a becoming chiffon ensemble.

WONDERS WILL NEVER cease! The audience actually stayed in their seats and applauded the cast at the end of the performance. We almost fell out of our chairs and hope our few remarks from time to time have fallen on fertile minds. Miss Leeds, in a chic black taffeta—we do NOT like young brunettes in black, no, not ever—made a speech about the subscriptions. It was so nice to be back at the Copley again. See you there later.

MRS. F. ROLAND CLOUGH has sent out cards to announce the engagement of Miss Beatrice Clough, her daughter, and invited us to tea on Monday, October 5—why, that is today—to meet the fiance, Mr. John R. Rathbone. Fancy an engraved announcement for anything so uncertain as an engagement. Bea must be SURE of her man.

MRS. CLOUGH IS ONE OF the conscientious mothers who went to all the balls the year Beatrice came out, whether she received an invitation or not. In spite of which Miss Clough has nursed a little romance. Good for her.

Wide Appeal of Wool Fashions

By ANN ARDEN

When choosing your new dress for fall take note of the fabric, it is such a very important factor.

Woolens that are sheer and spongy in quality are being sought by everyone who has a feeling for smartness. The fashion importance of the woolen dress is unquestioned, the materials are fascinating in design and color combinations, and the new graceful simplicity of their fashioning give them a definite appeal to women of taste and discernment.

The smartly simple frock pictured has contrast, fine workmanship and slim lines to recommend it. The material is a knit tweed in green, black and gray mixture. Many seams run diagonally on the bodice, and over the hips, merging to straight skirt gores. A twisted applique design and bow of black cloth outlines the rounded neckline. The belt is of black cloth run through black bone buckle, while buttons covered in the cloth fasten the sleeves between wrist and elbow.

The hat is of green felt, its brim in soft folds, held by feather fancy toned green, yellow and orange at center back. The bag is black suede topped by metal clasp and ornament.

Such a dress is perfect for the first fall days.

THIS IS LIFE

COLLEGE, A PLACE WHERE YOU MAY LEARN TO LIVE LIKE A GENTLEMAN

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

THE THOUSANDS OF YOUNG MEN and women, who began last week what they hope will be four years of college life, must have entered upon their college course, if they were at all intelligent and sensitive to the signs of the times, with a certain reflective soberness which has not been common of late among our young people who have, in only too many cases, been taught to look upon a college education as a matter of course.

ROBERT E. ROGERS

The time is long past in this country when the number of college graduates was so small that they might well expect to have a distinct advantage, socially, financially and in reputation, over those who have not had that prolonged training. The curve which marks the number of our college students in proportion to our population has been going up of late at such a steep angle that it threatens to go off the chart altogether. Not merely have our colleges increased in number, but what might be called our collegiate schools, private institutions that specialize in certain aspects of higher education, have multiplied even more rapidly. Many of them turn out students highly specialized, it is true, in some particular art or skill, but without any adequate foundation education, in any true sense of the word.

This year's freshman knows perfectly well, unless he is hopelessly wrapped in his own youthful concerns, that the present crisis has spared the college-bred man in the higher positions of business no more than it has spared the uneducated wage-earner. He has heard stories, which are probably only too true, of well-educated men accustomed to good jobs who are willing to do almost anything they can lay their hands on to keep alive. He knows that the alumni employment offices are working overtime and with not altogether heartening results. He also knows that business has been through such a purging and dieting this past year or two that the former inflation of personnel, the former multiplication of well-paid jobs, has given way, probably permanently, to an economy of operation which leaves many men out of work.

Professions Badly Overcrowded

He knows, too if he is wide-awake, that there is hardly a profession in the United States which is not so badly overcrowded that the chances for the future lawyer or engineer are nowhere as bright as they were 20 years ago. Or, if there is not actually overcrowding in proportion to population, the distribution of professional men, such as doctors and teachers, is so inefficient that the result is the same. The time will come perhaps when there will be intelligent interest taken in the problem of getting our young professional men and women out of the overcrowded metropolitan districts and out into the country, where there is probably still a reasonable living for them—but that time is not yet.

Our college freshman perhaps read the words of Mayor Walker earlier in the summer. He said "the time will come when every carpenter and plumber and bricklayer will have two or three college degrees." Exaggerated, of course, but the lesson is perfectly plain. The time is past when the average college graduate of mediocre ability and without useful family connections can hope for the superior, well-paid job that leads to a career. Already the competition within the professions is heart breaking. Within the next 10 years years the barriers between the average student and the efficient college or technical or professional school will be so high that he cannot hope to surmount them. The number of men and women entering the professions will have to be decimated, or worse. And neither school or student will be to blame. Economic competition will make it inevitable.

Since that is so, why is the intelligent young person who recognizes himself as of only average ability going to college? If he is wise he will tell himself that he is going because there he will have a chance to live during four very important years in an atmosphere deliberately designed to foster, not specialized efficiency and occupational success, but deliberate, all-round, intellectual and cultural life. In the words of a popular novelist of flaming youth, Mr. Percy Marks, he is to be kept under glass for four years, to go through an intellectual and social forcing process in which the individual will not be distracted by the thousand and one clamoring details of practical living in the outer world. He will be able to concentrate on one thing, making the best of whatever mind he has, developing whatever possibilities of intelligence he possesses.

All-Around Education Needed

College as a laboratory in the art of earning a living is done for. It just doesn't (and can't) guarantee results. But college of the old definition, a place where you may learn how to live like a gentleman, is perhaps coming back into its own again. The student who expects that college will give him a safe, secure and superior job is taking an expensive chance. The returns on his investment of $5000 or more are no longer as certain as they once were.

The wise student, however, is realizing that perhaps the investment is still worth while from another angle. But not if he only skims by his studies, loses himself in a welter of "activities," or wastes his time in all the attractive ways of time-wasting which are open to a college student. Only if he puts in his four years at the deliberate and habitual practice of using his mind, on the assumption that specific knowledge and specialized training will not be as valuable to him as that "undifferentiated efficiency," which comes from constant intellectual exercise and which may be usefully switched to any job that comes along.

That "undifferentiated efficiency" is the reason why graduates of liberal arts colleges are only too often the bosses and employers of the graduates of engineering and professional schools. The professional school of the future must increasingly try to give its students the all-round undifferentiated education of the older college, even if it has to cut down somewhat on its specialized technical courses. After half a century of the swing toward what can be called only "vocational training," this is the handwriting on the wall.

A few years ago it was an outmoded educational theory. Today it is a hard, indisputable fact. So much at least the depression has taught us. And the freshman of the class of 1931 will do well to take the advice seriously to heart.

LAUGH BY OTHER GIRL STARTS 'BIFF' PLAY

Seems Like Money Is at the Bottom of Swampscott Mixup; All Okay Now

It is a very nice ... Thomas C. Borden, wealthy young Swampscott express company head, is wearing, but there was some dispute today as to whether Mrs. Louise F. Aubrey, comely Lynn widow, had blackened the eye out of jealousy or because he owned her money.

Both admit, however, that the black eye was born through Mrs. Aubrey's swinging her handbag several times on Borden's ... while he sat in his home yesterday chatting with Miss Beatrice Sarsfield, 20, of Humphrey st., Swampscott.

Borden declared it was pan... jealousy that fired Mrs. Aubrey, whom he said was his partner and backer, but the widow indignantly declared that she was jealous of no girl.

EVERYTHING IS OKAY

"But there are no hard feelings now. Everything is O. K.," said Borden. "She begged my pardon for what she had done."

Borden denied that he was keeping company with Miss Sarsfield, a nurse. She attended his mother until her death a month ago, Borden said, and yesterday, when in the vicinity of the Borden home dropped in to say "hello."

The bag-swinging widow denied that she is Borden's business partner or his backer.

GAVE HER THE LAUGH

"I have never kept company with Mr. Borden," she asserted. "I am not backing him in business, and above all I am not jealous of that girl or of any girl.

"He owes me money and I went to his home to collect it. They both gave me the laugh and so I hit him with my handbag. He took me home afterward in his car and straightened things out with me.

"He's just a friend, but wasn't he nice to call the police?"

HOBBIES URGED FOR PASTORS

Even ministers should have some hobby, a group of Baptist ministers were told today in Chipman Hall, Tremont Temple, by the Rev. Marinus James, pastor of the Hingham Baptist Church.

A minister with a hobby, the Rev. James declared, has no ... day in his calendar as ... Monday.

"Photography is a good hobby to begin on," he said. "I know an old lady who grows different colored mushrooms. They are a beautiful sight. Then I know a preacher who studies the stars and often preaches of them.

"We had in Boston a minister who for years collected autographs of noted persons. Today his colection is worth over $10,000.

City Workers Can't Be Made to Give

There is no way in which to justify the assessment of 1 per cent of wages of city employes as a means for swelling funds of the welfare department, Mayor Curley said to day, when he returned to the City Council without approval an order to that effect.

Employes of many departments have contributed to the welfare department adn it was hoped that others will follow their example the mayor said, but it would be unfair to compel them to contribute.

Mayor Curley today returned to the City Council with his approval, an order favoring his plan for a five-day week with six days wages for city employes. In his communication to the council the mayor said he will be pleased to receive suggestions pertaining to this matter from members.

The Road Back

By Erich Maria Remarque

What Has Gone Before

ERNST tells the story of a group of war comrades after peace is made. Arriving at their home city, Ernst and Lieutenant Ludwig Breyer are attacked by revolutionaries and rescued by the giant Willy Homeyer. At Willy's house the returned soldier is in disgrace for killing a neighbor's rooster. The friends meet again and learn that a former officer, against whom they have a long-standing grudge, is proprietor of a nearby cafe. They visit the cafe and find the former officer. Kosole administers a severe beating and the friends call at the quartermaster's store to get discharge equipment. The next day Ernst calls at the home of his prominent uncle for dinner and horrifies the guests with his army manners.

THE THING Is being lifted off man's fragile shoulders [illegible] of courting and proposing

Men are growing so shy and elusive—and girls so brave and strong AND resourceful! Of course, a girl COULD wait until a man asked her outright to marry him, but she would probably have to go to the altar in a wheelchair and mumble the responses between her second set of false teeth.

HELEN ROWLAND

Will you let these capable little hands scatter your path with roses and lift all the cares from your fair young shoulders?

Will you give me the right to protect you from wild women, unscrupulous flappers and designing man-hunters, and to provide you with monogrammed cigarettes and long hose, a racing car and pocket money?

Daily True Story

Yellow Streak

[illegible] Joe had become the law breaker, rapidly growing [illegible]

"This kidnaping of Spinelli," Jim was saying, "has got the whole county worked up; he's the only witness we need to cinch our evidence against the bootlegging ring—we can't find him—that's why I've asked you to see me. I'm taking you at your word, Joe, that you have no more to do with the gang than I have."

"Me!" Joe rolled his cigar to the other side of full lips. "If I knew, Jim, believe me, I'd be the first to tell—you got me down as a law breaker, but I ask you what's the difference between selling good stuff and buying good stuff—why they got a banquet in this burg where the judges and the lawyers don't lose their swig, and I don't see you hauling them in—"

HARD TO PIN DOWN

"I'm not discussing the rights and wrongs of rum selling," interrupted Fairchild, "all I'm interested in at present is Spinelli—when the ring kidnaps a witness that's something else again—and let me tell you people'll stand a good deal, but they won't stand for that."

"It's terrible," agreed Joe with a solemnity that had a devastating mockery, "an' if I could find Spinelli I'd lead you to him—honest I would."

[illegible] the room, and suddenly came a cry.

"We want Terriss—we want Terriss."

Fairchild gripped the arms of his chair, then leaped to his feet and rushed to the window.

"My God!" he cried. "A mob!"

The bootlegger rose too.

"Back," cried Fairchild. "Back, don't let them see you," and he proceeded to draw down the green shades one after another.

The shouts increased:

"We want Terriss—we want Terriss."

The Big Shot's face was a trifle pale now and there was a hint of fear in his eyes.

"I guess I'd better get out of here," he remarked as casually as he could.

"You had," said Fairchild. "I wouldn't want my worst enemy to fall into the clutches of that mob. Come with me."

He started for the door, followed by Terriss, but the door was opened before they reached it, a dozen half-masked faces [illegible] with sawed-off [illegible] the eager of whom had a coil of heavy rope hung around his shoulder.

"Gentlemen," protested the prosecutor.

"We want Terriss," said the leader in a voice that struck a chill to the bootlegger, "he knows where Spinelli is."

A FINAL THREAT

"No—no, he doesn't!" answered Fairchild, "he says he doesn't."

"He knows," went on the leader; "he's played his last card and he's going to tell swinging from the end of this rope and if the mob that's waiting for him down there don't believe him he'll swing anyhow—come on Terriss."

Fairchild almost threw himself in front of the cowering bootlegger.

"Gentlemen," he pleaded, "give me five minutes with him [illegible]

"We want Terriss!"

"You heard 'em," said the leader grimly, "five minutes, then tell him to say his prayers—he'll need 'em."

He paused with his hand on the knob, "and don't try to call the police—the wires are cut."

[illegible]

"I've done all I can to save you, Joe," he gasped, "you heard them."

"Quick!" burst out the bootlegger, pulling at his collar as though it were the rope around his neck. "I'll spill it—where Spinelli is—where Spinelli is—but I swear I didn't have no hand in it—that deserted quarry back of the Tilton road—they're just holdin' him there—ain't no harm come to him."

"So," said the prosecutor, "but I'm afraid they won't believe you."

"I'm afraid they'll—here!" He led the way to a closet concealed by a portiere.

[illegible] after Spinelli was [illegible]

THE SOLUTION

"Gentlemen," he said, "Terriss is under lock and key at his own request—he feels safer there. I want to thank you for your excellent mob scene—you acted with the realism of genius and those megaphone calls from the street were timed perfectly—as a result we have Spinelli."

"That was a clever idea of yours, Jim," said the man who had carried the rope, "but why'd you think it would work?"

"I'll tell you," said Fairchild, "when Joe and I were kids we were on a picnic and I discovered a streak of yellow in him. That's a color men like Joe try to hide, but you can always find it if you go about it the right way."

COMFORT for COLICKY BABIES

with Castoria's gentle regulation

"The best way to cure colic," says a famous doctor, "is to prevent it. And the best way to prevent it is to avoid gas in stomach and bowels by keeping the entire intestinal tract open, free from waste.

But there's one thing to remember here. A tiny baby's tender organs cannot stand harsh treatment. They must be gently urged.

This is just the place Castoria comes to a mother's aid. Castoria, you know, is made specially for the delicate needs of babies and children. It's a pure vegetable preparation which is absolutely harmless. It contains no harsh drugs, no narcotics.

Children never fight Castoria. They like its taste and the relaxed comfort its gentle regulation brings.

For many years it has helped mothers through trying ordeals with colicky babies, with children suffering from digestive upsets, colds and other little ailments. Keep it on hand for your children. You can always tell genuine Castoria by the name Chas. H. Fletcher.

We think the song they're chanting is altogether wrong.
We'll bet you a new bonnet, that when the gong clangs "Go"
You'll see the greatest shinds since Dempsey fought Firpo

The greatest scrap of the season is just around the next Monday Columbus Day. "What!" we hear some of you fans roar. "You call the Sharkey Carnera bout the scrap of the season? Howza get that way? Well folks, figger it out for yerselves. Here's the biggest man in the ring, about the biggest man that ever crawled through the ropes, but who can step a mile like a 10 pounder, meeting the fellow who a few short weeks ago was hailed as the world's greatest heavyweight. If the ballyhoo Sharkey and Carnera in June no ball park would have been big enough to house the mob. But when Sharkey came along at 1 failed to stand the overgrown middleweight veteran, Mickey Walker on his 1 to overthrow, he reduced his drawing power 50 per cent. But we're not talking about gates or attendance; we are talking about toe to ear leather. And folks, you're going to see more leather tossed, more man-sized polthognes whizz through the air, when the giant Italian and the Garrulous Gob answer the gong in Ebbets Field, next Monday, than you have seen since the old Man Killer, himself, Jack Dempsey, tamed the Wild Bull of the Pampas.

Sharkey is a peculiar fellow. He's an in-and-outer. Today he's great; tomorrow he's awful. He was awful against Mickey Walker. The bigger they are, the better Jack is, and Carnera is the biggest man in the ring. Sharkey's whole future depends on the shindy with the Tall Tower of Gorgonzola. Let him lose and he is out of the big money for good. Winning over the giant Italian will put the Squire of Chestnut Hill back on the crest of the fistic wave again. Jack knows that the battle with the Man Mountain is make or break with him.

We have a hunch that while Sharkey did injure his hand he did not hurt it bad enough not to be able to go through with the match on the scheduled date. We believe the Garrulous Gob was angling for more time to reach the "point" in his conditioning. To get in tip-top shape, Sharkey required more time. To get the time the Gob had to bring about a postponment. He knew that the postponment would hurt Carnera as much as it would help him. The giant son of Mussolini, you know, had trained for five weeks and trained as never before. He was right at the "point." To sudden ly lay Carnera off and start pointing him again, Sharkey knew would be a training problem. If Jack didn't know he had the toughest fight of his career ahead of him do you think he and his board of strategy would have done so much maneuvering?

As we have said before, we believe Primo Carnera is the most underestimated fighter in the ring. The "set up" tour he embarked on, greatly hurt his reputation. No one could be blamed for thinking that if Carnera insisted on feeding on push-over meat it was all he was fitted for. Then he took on Jimmy Maloney here with little or no training and held back until it was too late to finish him. Experienced fight followers at the ringside saw that Maloney never would have gone another round. But Maloney stood up 10 rounds with Carnera, hurt Primo. Something was wrong with the Carnera-Maloney fight in Miami. Carnera was not his real fighting self. Make no mistake about that. The giant Italian can name the round he can stop Mrs. Maloney's boy.

We don't look for another Dempsey-Firpo fight next Monday, for the Dempsey wallop is missing. But we do look for the most sensational heavyweight encounter since the old Man Killer and the Wild Bull put up that show which turned Yankee Stadium into a mad house.

Incidentally, before the Dempsey-Firpo fight 75 per cent of the critics, including "Yours Truly," said that it would be a "phoney," that Firpo did not belong in the same ring with the Manassa Mauler and Jack wouldn't even get his hair ruffled. There were all kinds of stories that the Argentinian was going to the floor for Dempsey and that it was a "fake." You know what happened. The same kind of talk is being made over Sharkey and Carnera. That is one reason why we believe both Sharkey and Carnera will fight as never before to win. If we thought there was anything wrong with the Sharkey-Carnera embroglio or any other fight we would be the first to trumpet it from the housetops. But we are not going to join in any Anvil Chorus just because it seems the popular thing to do. We'll stand in our own brogans until somebody knocks us out of them.

Brooklyn isn't the only burg which will stage a battle on Columbus Day. Right here in Boston we will have one on tap which should warm the cockles of your heart—Boston College vs. Fordham. No one can say Fordham is getting any of the benefit of the schedule. Within five days the Maroons play about the two toughest games on their list. Cavanaugh's men take on B. C. next Monday and five days later meet Holy Cross. The Crusaders are almost in the same boat. Holy Cross meets Dartmouth and Fordham on successive week-ends.

While Harvard is taking on little New Hampshire next Saturday, Yale will get its real 1931 baptism of fire against Georgia. The Dixie boys are coming up with another great eleven and are thirsting for the Bulldog's gore. The Dartmouth-Holy Cross game reveals the Yale-Georgia struggle in popular interest. In fact in the sextet of the fighting fronts, fans, other than those directly affiliated with Yale, Harvard or Georgia, will watch the battle between the Purple and the Green closer than the Yale-Georgia embroglio. The shindy at Hanover should furnish about the fastest and most sensational football of the year.

The Middle West has two big games next Saturday. Michigan vs. Chicago and Notre Dame vs. Northwestern. Also on tap Saturday is the intersectional contest between Syracuse and Ohio Wesleyan.

Though early in the season, the warm-up games are o'er,
And now the teams are ready to spill some real, red gore.
When Crusaders crash with Dartmouth and Maroon meets old B. C.
And Bulldog scraps with Georgia, ah, 'tis there we want to be!

STILL ROCKNE STANDARD

Notre Dame, getting away to its 1931 start last Saturday, played up to the Rockne standard. The departed genius' proteges rolled over Indiana to the tune of 25 to 0. Here you see Melinkovitch skirting Indiana's left end for 11 yards.

Conell's aerial attack is the foundation of New Hampshire hopes. Last season, this same Wildcat eleven romped its way with a 7-0 victory over Brown.

ATHLETES WILL HAVE LIQUOR

"We won't carry coals to Newcastle. If our athletes want to drink, I am sure they won't carry beer to Los Angeles when it is available there."

Our athletes are going to the States to compete in races and boxing competitions. If such athletes don't train on beer. Only our rowers are advised to take beer while training.

America has granted us permission to take our beer into the United States free of customs charges. Maybe our rowers will take a little beer with them as part of their gear, but I don't think it is hard to get beer in the United States. Our men have previously managed to get all they wanted."

"Danny" Wells was noticeably more successful driving the so-called "second" than Capt. Barry Wood was with the regulars. Make no mistake about it, Wells is a football player and an inspiring field general.

Ted Hardy, former Waltham star who was ineligible last year, is one of the best tackles Harvard has possessed in many moons. He received his schooling under Ted Leary and is a credit to the Waltham mentor.

Two of the best forward passers in the East, Phil O'Connell, Holy Cross, and Bill Morton, Dartmouth, will oppose each other next Saturday at Hanover.

As the football genius has been invited to sit in at the movie showing of "The Spirit of Notre Dame" tonight at 8:30 at the Fox Film Exchange, 76 Broadway, the B. A. A. meeting will adjourn earlier than usual.

Winter Series Right Idea

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

If either team wins two out of three in Philly that means another hop back to Missouri. And by that time even the ghost writers will be tired of haunting the old castle.

If Connie Mack is smart he will hand Grove a hot curling iron and be sure of enough blisters to win the next three straight.

Today's game is going to be a sweetheart. President Hoover has been waiting outside Shibe Park since Saturday morning.

Both teams want to do their best for the President. What we need these days is a co-operation. And we're getting it. Even the roulette players are putting their shoulder to the wheel.

Mr. Hoover is a baseball expert. He keeps his own score. Which means that we won't be sure of the official verdict on this game until Herbert's card is okayed by both branches of Congress.

GOOD GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON
"Golf's Greatest Teacher"

For about the same reason that you use a low tee for your drive, general results will be better if you forego the tee in making iron shots from teeing ground. If you tee the ball for pitches on the three pars you may cease to wonder why it is that some of these shots go wild. The tee-up position of the ball traps you, unknowingly, into trying to lift the ball instead of letting the clubhead do it. Put the ball on the ground and let the clubhead swing downward into it and through. Be sure to go through without jabbing or pushing at the ball—smooth stroking by all means. The action is so bullet-like when the well-stroked iron gets the ball away that we hardly know exactly what does happen, but it always seems to me that the blade strikes the ball, the ball strikes the ground, and the ball then goes, with this squeeze against the ground operating to straighten the shot and keep it so. Without that effect many such shots go bad, and seemingly for no reason at all.

CLOSING WEAK IN WALL ST. DEALINGS

New York, Oct. 5—Stocks closed weak in Wall Street today, with [illegible]tial losses in leading issues. S[illegible] selling flurries swept over th[illegible]et, which showed little re[illegible] power.

U. S. Steel, Southern Pacific, American Telephone and Union Pacific lost around 5, while American Can, Woolworth, Atchison, New York Central and Consolidated Gas were down 3 to 4 or more.

3,000,000-SHARE DAY

Eastman Kodak and Allied Chemical dropped half a dozen points. Sales exceeded 3,000,000 shares.

The setback Saturday, after the market had shown a better tone on Friday, appeared to have caused fresh discouragement. The volume of fresh selling was perplexing to brokerage circles, however.

Atchison, facing a dividend meeting of uncertainty Tuesday, sold below par for the first time in seven years. Union Pacific touched par for the first time since before the war.

Uncertainty over the prospect of a general election in England continued to keep the London market unsettled, and large offerings in the New York market from abroad were again reported. The Paris market was weak.

But domestic offerings also continued large, and, despite the belief in some quarters that stocks are definitely on the bargain counter, investment buying was described as cautious, and on a scale down.

RAIL UNSETTLEMENT.

Rails were unsettled, apparently, by growing skepticism in brokerage circles over the prospect of any real belief from the increased freight rate plea, on which a decision is expected this month. It is taken for granted in some quarters in Wall st. that an effort to reduce railway wages will be made.

Third quarter earnings statements about to appear are receiving considerable comment. Wall Street expects New York Central will show net for the quarter of about 30 to 40 cents a share, against 93 cents in the previous quarter, and $1.75 in the third quarter of last year.

Pennsylvania is expected to show between 15 and 25 cents a share, as decreased from 36 cents in the preceding quarter, and $1.62 in the like period of last year.

The publication "Steel," advancing the publication of its weekly review from Wednesday to Monday, reported that ingot output this week would advance slightly from last week's rate of 29 per cent of capacity.

AIR AND WATER TRAVEL UP

Greater travel has resulted from the cutting of fares between Boston and New York on Eastern Steamship Lines, Inc. Effective Oct. 1, fare was cut to $5.50 with an immediate response from the public. Since the reduction was made Eastern has carried a greater number of passengers per trip than in any other fall season for several years.

Two thousand three hundred and eighty-five passengers were carried on the New York-Boston line of the American Airways (Colonial division) in September. This set a record, the best previous month being July, 1931, when 2242 passengers were carried.

It is also an increase of 64 per cent over September, 1930. In that month 1366 passengers were carried.

Sugar Beet Acreage for Year Is Larger

World sugar beet acreage for 1931 is estimated at 8,509,000 acres, against 8,491,000 last year, says the United States Department of Agriculture. The indicated slight increase is due to an increase of 31 per cent in Russian acreage, which this year accounts for half the total in all Europe. All other countries of importance report acreages well below last year.

COOK-COOS

By TED COOK

(Copyright, 1931, by the Boston Evening American)

These of us who have managed to hold on to our jobs are gratified to see that President Hoover has proclaimed Fire Prevention Week from October 4 to 10.

* * *

And yet you'll find critics who say that the administration doesn't do anything to prevent unemployment.

Milestone on the path to Puritanism—

TIA JUANA, Mexico—Judge Enrique Torres, civil court judge, has announced that he will perform no more wedding ceremonies in barrooms.

* * *

Happy as a pedestrian who became a traffic court judge.

PENSEE

I think I never want to be
A publicized celebrity.
If being such, I'd have to cope
With ads of myself using soap!

—Ruth Liberman.

"American life rests upon the convention that the entire male part of the population is in a permanent posture of reverent adoration before the female"—Valentina Williams.

Q. AND A. DEPARTMENT

Dear Aunt Bella—

Do you work in a shooting gallery?—Puzzled.

Ans.—Sometimes I pinch hit for a friend of mine on her night off. But a woman's house is her castle and if you're the umpchap who let go with a load of buckshot the other evening I wish you'd aim at the tin ducks, dearie.

—Aunt (Rod and Gun) Bella.

Station Announcement

We regret to report that Genevieve, the kitchen cynic, is unable to mumble a comment for her breathless public today. A victim of absent-mindedness, she inadvertently wrung out her chewing gum and stuffed the cedar mop into her mouth.

* * *

And das before yestidds, she tore up a $5 bill and put the cash register receipt in her purse.

Simile—

And aside from convincing a filling station attendant you don't want your windshield wiped, there's nothing harder than keeping a grocery clerk from wrapping up things.

And Mussolini thinks the Dole system has something to do with marketing pineapples.

The children of this modern day
Should grow unhampered every way;
And if a father dares to frown
His little son should slap him down.

—Garth Bentley.

Let's Keep Moving

New England Beating Depression

The Boston Chamber of Commerce yesterday gave to the public the evidence of forty-two typical New England industrial and commercial concerns, most of them large employers of labor, that "are licking the depression."

Despite the pessimism that abounds in some quarters, these plants are working full time or overtime.

Some of them report that in the so-called Dull Times of 1931, they have actually done A GREATER VOLUME OF BUSINESS THAN EVER BEFORE IN THEIR HISTORY.

A few excerpts from these highly favorable reports:

"Our hat business is improving decidedly; July and August of 1931 show a 27 per cent increase in units over July and August of 1930, while September may be even better."—The Mallory Hat Company.

"For the first eight months of 1931 our business (making of silver polish) was equal to that of the best year of our history."—J. A. Wright & Co., Inc.

"We are now operating an entire factory at capacity at our plant in Portland, Me., to supply the demand for our branded baked beans. Our other products likewise have shown sales increases."—Burnham & Merrill Co.

"We are now operating full time and orders from all over the country are showing a satisfactory increase."—F. M. Hoyt Shoe Corp.

"During the first half of 1931 our products broke all previous records."—Lockwood Brackett Co.

"Although we are operating in a field that has been especially hard hit by recent business conditions (builders' hardware), we have been able to show an increase in sales volume this year over 1930 by the introduction of popular-old priced merchandise, aggressively advertised."—Independent Lock Co.

"Our sales (food products and equipment) for eight months in 1931 are ahead of last year in tonnage and the number of orders shipped is greater. Collections are good and we have had no unsound losses. We have made no reduction in the number of our employes and we do not contemplate making any."—H. A. Johnson Co.

"We have noticed a marked improvement in business since September 1—in fact, for the first few days of the month, we ran ahead of the corresponding period of 1930."—The Strouse, Adler Co.

New England is in much better condition than the other sections of the country. But a few testimonials like the above, selected at random from among many, should give heart to all. We are on the road. Let's keep moving.

Our Minimum Wage Law

Thorough Probe Needed

The State of Massachusetts has begun an investigation of the operations of its minimum wage law.

It is investigating itself.

There is nowhere, among progressive, humane employers, any suggestion for abrogation of this law or its intent to fix a minimum, living wage for the women and girls who are forced by circumstances to work for their living in the industries and mercantile establishments.

The motive of this investigation is to decide where and how and why the Minimum Wage Commission has been derelict in its duties to these hard-working women and girls.

Mr. Corliss Lamont, Harvard alumnus, who raised the public subscription to reimburse the underpaid Harvard scrubwomen, says truly, "It is plain that enlightened minimum wage laws are of little use when they can be disregarded with complete impunity for almost ten years, as in the Harvard case."

He would like to know what pressure, what possible secret but powerful influences, have been exerted upon the Commission to disregard its plain duty.

So would the people of Massachusetts, not only in the Harvard case but in the several other notable incidents in which the mandate of the law has been ignored.

Governor Ely, President Bacon of the Senate and Speaker Saltonstall have selected what appears to be an independent, courageous committee to plumb to the depths of the matter.

No half-hearted, superficial investigation can be accepted by the public.

Just Folks

Purple Martins' Calendar

They come upon a certain day
And just as promptly move away,
No calendar they own, and yet
Precisely are their movements set—
'Tis only humans who forget.

The purple martins have no way
Of reckoning each passing day,
And yet by some strange sense they know
Exactly when it's time to go—
An art which humans seldom show.

The martin house is filled at night,
At dawn the birds have taken flight.
Though still the garden's gay with bloom
Where summer lingers at her loom,
Vacant is every martin room.

I wonder if this feat is done
By keener watching of the sun,
Or do they read the trees and flowers
And nature's signs with greater powers
And deeper insight than are ours?

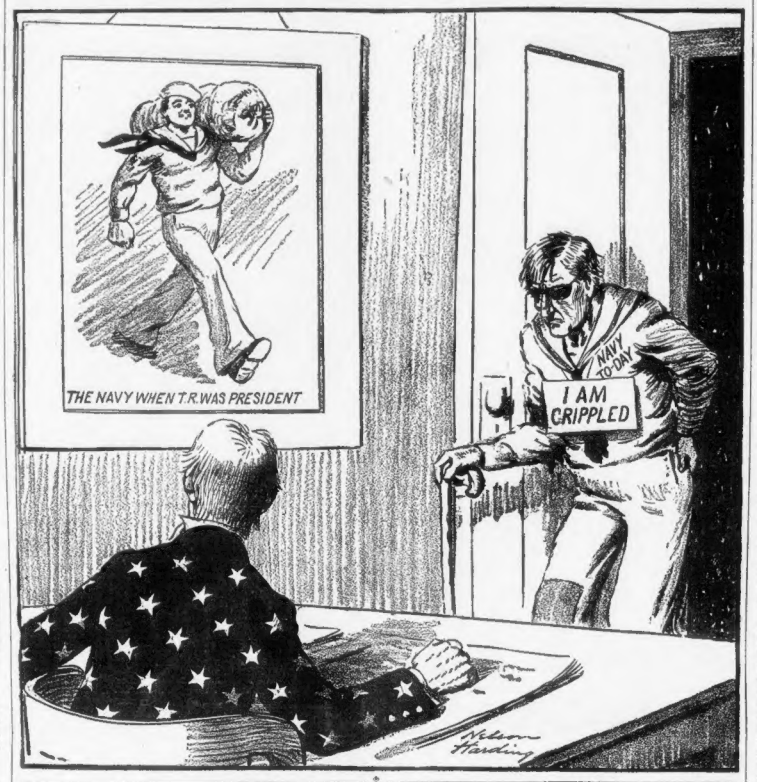
"I Knew Him When"

By NELSON HARDING



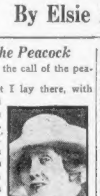
Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

Call of the Peacock

I WOKE AT the call of the peacock.

For a moment I lay there, with my eyes closed enjoying the friendly familiarity of it all. I am so seldom home—it was good to have a moment when everything was warm and welcoming, from old association.



Elsie Robinson

How often the big bird had awakened me like that with his high, harsh cry. There was a special place by the gray rail fence where I liked to stand and watch him. Then there was a clump of aromatic weed, and a brilliant patch of lichen on the weathered wood . . . silly, simple things but they had grown into my memory. The enclosure within was an enchanted spot, overgrown in a dark tangle, filled with vivid gloom, shot with sunlight. Through the gloom, tall, pale trunks twisted upward gleaming like great snakes. In the middle of it, beneath a tree with glossy, leathery leaves and huge, waxy blossoms, the peacock strutted . . . arching his blazing breast . . . turning his vain, suspicious eyes from side to side . . . trailing his ragged, jeweled splendor in the pinkish dust.

Such fragrant dust . . . that pungent aroma of the dry lands where leaf and flower and fruit and dripping gum crumble to a common powder in the long, rainless months.

Back home again—how good!

The brief wind died . . . the smell of some strange flower came thick and sweet . . . again the peacock gave that long wild cry—

I opened my eyes!

There was no peacock crying! No rail of friendly wood beneath my hand! No gray, clay wall . . . nor rattle of pines . . .

I was in the heart of the city. Outside, the automobiles roared. The air came stale, already often breathed, heavy with tire dust and gasoline. A factory whistle blew—

There was no peacock calling! AND NEVER IN MY LIFE HAD I BEEN AWAKENED BY A PEACOCK . . . NOR PLAYED BESIDE THAT HIGH, CLAY WALL . . . NOR FOLLOWED THAT TRAIL INTO THE FIG ORCHARD!

Yet I HAD heard the peacock call! It was not a dream. It had come after my full awakening. The sound of it was still in my ears . . . The feel of that fence was still in my hand . . . my heart was still warm with the comfort of homecoming. I HAD come home. I could not be mistaken. There is only one feeling like that in the world. That place WAS my home . . . but when . . . WHEN?

My breath caught from sheer terror. What had happened to me in that moment after I awoke, before I opened my eyes? What veil had been lifted into yesterday . . . into the long lost yesterdays . . . and how had it been possible for me to leave my conscious body lying in that bed and slip back to that place where once a peacock called?

And, though I have often thought about such matters, it came to me, with a great, fresh wonder, that the soul is a mysterious thing, with much secret business that we cannot comprehend.

But we might, I suspect, know much more than we do, if we had the courage to believe. For experiences like this strange awakening of mine come to all of us, even to the dullest and most doubting of us.

Many a man wakes to the call of the peacock . . . sees a strange road winding through solid brick and steel . . . hears a faint voice calling above the city's roar . . . catches a vanishing glimpse of a face that once he knew—

Then, frightened, turns and cries —"It couldn't—COULDN'T—be!" —and so the trail is lost.

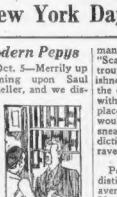
New York Day by Day

Diary of Modern Pepys

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—Merrily up and abroad, coming upon Saul Flaum, the book-seller, and we discussed one of the outstanding rats of the town. Later meeting Aimee and Hamish McLaurin, whom I have not seen in years and breakfasting at noon at Lou Schwarz's Mansion.



Motoring with my wife to the Gene Tunneys' in Connecticut to drive home their week-end visitors, the Henry Sells, a motor cycle constabls at Cos Cob waved us to the curb. And all affrighted and silent at prospect of gaol. Yet he merely informed us he was guiding us to Tunney's home.

In the evening to George White's "Scandals," which I think the very best show of the year. And the most celebrities I ever saw in a theater. So at the intermission talking to Paul Whiteman, Constance Talmadge, Marion Davies, Townsend Netcher, Jack and Evelyn Mulhall, Eddie Cantor, Bob Kane and others.

Rudy Vales rather definitely disconcerted his hooters—of which this writer is a platoon or so — and proved in his theatrical premiere that he is more than a high nasal radio crooner. Vallee in a forthright manner ambled amiably through the "Scandals" revue with hardened old troupers, showing neither amateurishness nor stage fright. He accepted the constant joshing of stage mates with perfect and professional complacence. Those who predicted he would prove a gawkish figure are sneaking up back alleys. His poise, diction and modesty created critical rave next day.

Personal nomination for the most distinguished pair of strollers on the avenue—E. H. Sothern and Julia Marlowe.

Eugene O'Neill's proposed three-nights-running trilogy called "Mourning for Electra" is furnishing dinner table talk alright. I hope not to see it. "Strange Interlude" gave me enough of his playwrighting from now on. Among intellectuals this is rankest upstarty. Yet I find that as a general rule those who run a fever over O'Neill plays have conniption fits over "The Bridge of San Luis Rey." In other words 90 out of 100 do not know what it's all about. Or am I too noisy?

I notice, too, a musical melodrama is being readied for Broadway. Usually melodrama to music is mawkish or farcical. Jack Donahue's last success, "Sons-of-Guns," was an exception. Phil Baker and I bellowed right out loud at that one.

And on the Bowery a sweatered entrepreneur is preparing to open a Gay Ninety beer hall, such as the old Atlantic Garden. There will be sawdust on the floor, prop lalies-in-waiting at tables, bristly haired barytes and a tiny stage offering tear jerking ballad singers and the like. Only near beer will be served. It is a gag to remind of other days and as a novelty may attract awhile.

Percy Hammond in a discursive paragraph observes: "Veteran New Yorkers such as O. O. McIntyre, F. P. A., George Hyler, Walter Trumbull, C. B. Dillingham and Wilton Lackaye can remember way back, etc."

Federal Government! Advice and Action

By Claude G. Bowers

There have been interesting developments in the English crisis this week As is the case with reactionaries everywhere and in all ages, the Tories have hoped to take advantage of their country's extremity to force through, under the pressure of hysteria, their own particular program. They are especially anxious to get their high tariff plan through under the pretext of relieving the pressure on the treasury. But their attempt to inject a political or party issue into the program of the National Government and force an immediate election on it has been thwarted.

The King has played his part in this. It would have been absurd for Ramsay MacDonald to have led an election fight for the National Government party bearing a banner inscribed with all the Tory shibboleths he has consistently opposed through life. He has made sacrifice enough. Mr. Baldwin and his party did not want to make any sacrifice at all. A test vote at a Cabinet conference on the tariff proposal of the Tories revealed an equal division, with three of the four Labor members and all the Liberal members voting against the Tory bloc.

Meanwhile Lloyd George, conferring with his chief lieutenants at his country home, had given the word and the Liberals unanimously, in conference, declared against the tariff program and an immediate election. In the event of an election with the tariff as the issue, this would have meant the Labor and Liberal parties in alliance against the Tories—with Ramsay MacDonald, of all men, bearing the Tory banner. This he would not have done, and so he told the King. The monarch asked MacDonald to prevent an election by all means the other day, but he may have changed his mind. The Tories have surrendered.

A Labor Program More Radical Than Ever

Meanwhile, as we predicted, the Labor party has announced a program which is more radical than ever. It demands that the banking and credit system of the country be taken out of private hands, and that the interallied debts be cancelled. It advances with long strides toward pure socialism. In the event of an election now it is not impossible that the Labor party, more radical than ever, would prevail over the Tory combination.

And the Labor pronouncement proclaimed the party's opposition to the Tory tariff plan, which, it says:

"Would artificially increase the cost of living, enrich private interests at the expense of the community, and further prejudice international co-operation. While tariffs would permanently injure the shipping and export trades, they would not be effective in reducing unemployment, promoting industrial efficiency or adjusting the balance of trade."

Evidently these men have studied America, not without profit. A high tariff here has not prevented the greatest amount of unemployment in history; it has, in other days, "enriched private interests at the expense of the community" and it has now been met with international retaliation which deprives us of foreign markets we once enjoyed, and injuriously affects both the railroads and the shipping interests.

Takes Sharp Issue With National Administration

Returning to America, we find Dr. J. A. Ryan of the Catholic University of America, one of the most famous of American economists, taking sharp issue with the position of the National Administration that there really is nothing the National Government should be called upon to do.

He knows that private charity cannot possibly grapple with the situation that spreads before us. He knows that States can do no more than scratch the surface. He finds that many States have no income tax and no adequate tax system through which money can be raised to meet the problem of unemployment. He finds that New York, richest State in the Union, is appropriating but $20,000,000 for the purpose. And he concludes:

"There must be a Federal bond issue, and Federal public works, rather than State, will have to form the program for work next Winter. The Federal Government will have to do the greater part of the public work. Five billion dollars ought to be appropriated at once for road building, and this could be started at once."

Every penny spent in building roads adds to the wealth and comfort of the nation; and not one penny spent will be expended as a dole.

A Way to Reach the Bulging Millions

They tell us that with millions of jobless and millions threatened with starvation the banks are bulging with hoarded money; and Mr. Gifford, the head of the President's Commission, tells us in a talk over the radio that the people must take their money out and spend it now. There are millions belonging to people in very ordinary circumstances in these banks; and they are not going to take it out and spend it because they are fearful of the morrow.

But they will take it out to buy Government bonds; and, through these bonds, these millions will be spent in giving employment; and the millions thus given out in wages will be out of the banks and in circulation. That is a way to reach the bulging millions in the banks.

It is sheer nonsense to scold the man on a small salary or making ordinary wages, with $3000 savings in the bank, and fearful lest he lose his job or have his wage reduced tomorrow, because he does not draw it out and splurge. But he will take it out to buy Government bonds—and it can be put to work to put men in jobs and thus enormously increase consumption.

But the President is opposed to action by the Federal Government; and his Commission on Unemployment Relief announces itself as a mere "national background" to give "advice" to local governmental units in the hope that they adequately will deal with a national crisis.

We have too much advice; we need action.

A Graver Crisis Now Than in War Days

It is argued that a five-billion-dollar prosperity loan, or two billion, as proposed by Senator Wagner, is most unusual, and of course unnecessary and undesirable in ordinary times. But do our national "leaders" think these are ordinary times?

It is possible they do not know that we face a graver crisis now than in the darkest days of the war when five billion was a mere bagatelle!
